EXPLODING POWDER

Injures Four Persons and Wrecks a Double Dwelling House

BABY'S NARROW ESCAPE

Thrown Twenty Feet From Its Mother's Arms and Got off Without a Scratch

WALLS OF THE HOUSE FELL OUT

Punxsutawney, March 10.—A keg of powder exploded here today, injuring four persons and wrecking a double house belonging to the Punxsutawney Coal company. An infant, thrown twenty feet from its mother's arms, did not receive a scratch. The injured:

Ralph Childa, burns and bruisee.

Mrs. Childa, bruisee.

Mrs. Mary Gamato, hands and face burned.

Louise Gamato, burned over body.

All but Mrs. Childa were taken to the hospital. The injured were in front of the kitchen stove when a keg of powder behind the stove, from some unknown cause, exploded. Mrs. Childa was just leaving the room with a little child in her arms. The mother was blown under a bed while the child landed on top of it. The others struck the walls near the ceiling and escaped, being crushed by the collapsing roof only through the walls falling out. The family occupying the other side of the house escaped unhurt.

Taft Solid in Ohio

Secretary Taft will have the solid support of the Ohio delegation for president in the Republican national convention at Chicago. This was made clear by the action of the Republican state convention on Wednesday. Kansas also declared for the war secretary on the same day. He is far in the lead thus far for the nomination, and close political observers predict that he will undoubtedly keep this lead up to the meeting of the convention.

The fact that the Ohio man has the lead will probably not prevent the other candidates from keeping up their contest and their hopes as the precedents show that when the lead of the candidates having the highest number of votes comes short of a majority on the first ballot, the final choice of the convention usually falls on some candidate previously less favored in the vote getting.

Pennsylvania has a favorite son whom she hopes to see secure the nomination, and all admit that if Senator P. C. Knox is the nominee he will fill the office with distinction. His ability and fitness for the presidency is unquestionable and the Republicans of the Keystone state propose to use all honorable means to make him the nominee at Chicago.

The Academy—St. Columbia Game.

The fastest basket ball team that has been scheduled for a game in Bellefonte this season is undoubtedly the St. Columbia College five from Johnstown. The Academy has scheduled them because they are willing to tackle a hard proposition in order to give the Basket ball lovers of Bellefonte a contest that will be as exciting as possible. There have been so many one sided contests in Bellefonte this year, a team that promises to make the Academy work for every point they make, ought to attract a very large crowd. Every one who attends will get the worth of his money, for while the Johnstown team is very fast and clever, our own Academy has been playing championship ball, having lost but two games out of eight and therefore you may expect to see fine and exciting sport when these two teams meet. Admission 25 cents.

Milesburg to Have State Road.

The State Highway Departmednt is asking for bids for the construction of a state road in Milesburg borough and also in Rush township. The road in Milesburg is to extend from the borough line at the county bridge to the borough line at the southern end of the town, a distance of 2699 feet. This will make quite an improvment in Milesburg and covers a piece of road that is much used. The Rush township road will cover a stretch of over a mile running in an easterly direction from the Philipsburg borough line.

THE NEGRO.

Interesting Illustrated Lecture Sunday Night in the Presbyterian Church.

G. F. Richinge, of Urbana, delivered a most excellent lecture at the Presbyterian church to a large audience on the subject of "Industrial education for the Negro." The lecturer followed out the finer lines laid down in the Booker T. Washington plan at Tuskegee Institute. The real intent of Mr. Richings' lecture is to create interest in the Curry Normal and Industrial school at Urbana, O. The school fulfils the purpose of educating the young negro along the same lines as laid down by the Institute at Tuskegee and is incorporated under the laws of Ohio. Some of the leading white men of the state are behind this movement for the benefit of the colored race. Mr. Richings' clear and comprehensive review of the negro question, aptly illustrated by pictures, which brought out convincingly the fundamental points of his argument, two questions that are most prominent in the consideration of the colored race. Why educate and train the negro and how shall it be done. Mr. Richings answered them in detail. One point made by Mr. Richings was the fact that the negroes are leaving the south by the thousands and coming to the cities and towns of the north and we dare not let them grow up in ignorance, as it would in that way allow them to become a menance to civilazation. He said people should lose sight of their prejudice against the colored race and try to make them useful citizens. The part the churches of the north have taken in the education of the negro formed a part of Sunday's lecture, and much interest was shown by the audience in the pictures of Presbyterian schools and especially in Lincoln University in this state, also Lucy Laney's school at Agusta, Ga. Mr. Richings gave his lecture and pictures on Wednesday night at the M. E. church, and a large crowd was in attendance. Quite a number of pictures were shown representing Methodist work in the South.

All Night in Rain.

Cyrus Heltman the well-known Mackeyville farmer, while working in his barn early Saturday morning, was surprised to see in the public road a woman who was wandering about attired in a man's overcoat, which was so thoroughly soaked by the rain that water was dripping from it. She asked Mr. Heltman, where a relative lived and was taken there by his son. It was noticed that she was demented and had evidently roamed about all night in the rain, as early Friday evening the woman was seen near the canal in Flemington and she acted so strangely that boys snowballed her, they believing she intended to drown herself. It is presumed that she walked the entire distance to Mackeyville during the night, during which time rain fell in torrents at intervals.

Improving Nippono Park.

The Nippono Park association contemplate erecting a large bathing house on Crane's island for use this season, and make the island otherwise attractive and inviting to the patrons of this popular summer resort. With the addition of better boating service, the island will become more popular this year than ever before. They also intend putting up two more tables under roof protection same as the two table buildings now on the grounds. This will give better accommodations to visiting delegations and picnic parties. The skating rink will be in operation same as last reason, and other attractions will be added for the pleasure and comfort of those who visit the park. Nothing will be left undone to make it a pleasure place for the summer.

Fickle March.

Ever since its arrival March has been displaying an unusual degree of fickleness. Again Sunday was a day unfavorable to church going but the attendance was fair notwithstanding. The melting snow and rains during the afternoon and evening created many puddles of water and in some places covering the sidewalks and crossings. The gutters being filled with ice in places prevented the water running off. The snow continues to melt today and the streams are rising.

Reports from the country are that the roads are in a wretched condition, the drifts being so soft that horses and vehicles sink into them and have great difficulty in getting out. Holes in the road which are filled with slush and water cannot be seen and horses fall down and sleighs upset running into them.

FOUL MURDER AT SLATE RUN

Italian Clubs Countryman to Death In a Brutal Manner

REVENGE OR ROBBERY

Is Motive for the Cruel Deed—The Lycoming County Authorities Take Action

THE CULPRIT HAS ELUDED CAPTURE

A deliberate, cowardly murder was perpetrated at Slate Run, Lycoming county, Saturday night, the victim being Mike Migliozzi, an Italian who some years ago became an American citizen through naturalization. The man accused of murder is Frank Minicutz, another Italian, who escaped immediately after he had clubbed Migliozzi to death with a most formidable weapon. Revenge for a fancied wrong and robbery are the theories advanced for the crime, which is stamped very clearly as having been premeditated, the murderer lurking in the shadow of a fence and attacking his victim when the latter was within a short distance of his home.

To get to the facts that seem to indicate murder for revenge, it may be stated that the two principals of the case worked at the same place, the saw mill at Slate Run Migliozzi, the murdered man, was one of the best Italians in that section. He had been there for years. A year ago his wife died and he left for Italy to take his three children there to place them in care of his sister. About five months ago he returned to Slate Run and resumed his work at the saw mill, where, as stated, the other man, Minicutz, also worked. Recently Minicutz was laid off owing probably to the scarcity of work. The other man may have been blamed by Minicutz for this. In fact some of the Italians who knew both men, are of the opinion that Minicutz did attribute his lay-off to the man he is alleged to have slain.

County Detective Tepel, who put in all of Sunday in hard work on the case, believes that the robbery theory explains the crime. On the person of the murdered man was $91, which it is believed that the other man knew he possessed. The fact that the money was not taken is explained by the hurried escape of Minicutz, who was seen fleeing from the spot and who probably knew that he had been seen and that if he wished to go away he would not have time to stop to go through the dead man's clothes in search of the money.

Migliozzi, the murdered man, who was about fifty years of age, had left his home to go to the home of a neighbor in the Italian settlement at about 7:30 o'clock in the evening. It was about 9 o'clock when he was going back home that he was waylaid by his enemy and killed. The murder was cunningly carried through, showing with what care it had been planned. Minicutz lay in wait in a offset in a fence about a hundred feet away from the home of Migliozzi. When the latter was passing the hidden Italian reached forward sufficiently far to deal him a powerful blow on the head with a club. One blow doubtless knocked the man senseless, but evidently two or three blows in all were struck, causing immediate death.

Up till Sunday evening the murderer had not been captured. The police in surrounding towns have been notified to be on the watch for him. Several reports were received that a man answered the description of Minicutz was seen, but each time it proved not to be the man wanted.

Derrick off the Track

A large steam derrick was brought from Williamsport Saturday morning to place on the track the three cars that were wrecked near the Nittany furnace on Friday morning. While passing through the switches at the far end of the platform at the station one truck of the derrick car left the track and it was with considerable difficulty that the derailed truck was replaced on the rails. These derricks are a very powerful piece of machinery and it is an interesting sight to see them at work. The engine was not used in getting the car on the rails but by anchoring to one of the rails the derrick car was pulled onto the track by making use of its own power.

Academy to Give Minstrels.

A rare treat in the musical, joke and specialty line, together with splendid scenic effects is promised to all lovers of the beautiful and humorous when the Bellefonte Academy minstrels appear in the Garman opera house on Friday evening, May 1. There is considerable musical and artistic talent in the school this year; and this talent, under the leadership of Prof. Sherwood Hall, who has already won triumphs in Bellefonte as a musical artist, promises a "howling success" for the minstrels. The boys have been spending recess periods for some time in practicing the pretty catchy music for the overture and will continue this pratice until May 1, thus assuring a musical triumph that will surprise our Bellefonte people. Several surprises will be sprung in line of "specialties." The jokes will be most carefully selected and none will be "cracked" that are not at the same time new, clever and inoffensive. The costuming will be made a matter of special study for this occasion to produce the most pleasing artistic effects. So much for the first announcement which will be followed by others from week to week. Now you ask for what benefit is the performance to be given?

Answer—To raise as much money as possible through a program of mirth, music and beauty, to be added to whatever money will have been raised by the voting contest and a special subscription for the purpose of defraying the expenses incident to establishing the new athletic field for the use of the Academy and the town.

Remember the date, good people, and avoid in the interest of the Academy and the young men and boys of Bellefonte, fixing parties, entertainments, etc. for either May 1 or 2. By such a caution you will be at liberty to thoroughly enjoy an evening of wholesome fun and you will not hinder others.

Former Centre Countian Dead.

George McBath a resident and former business man of Kylertown died Saturday night. He had for several weeks been afflicted with carbuncles, and on Friday his condition became very serious and grew worse till death resulted.

The deceased was a native of this county, having been born near State College on March 3rd 1846, making his age 62 years and 4 days. He located in Kylertown about thirty years and was engaged in the boot and shoe business. His wife preceded him to the grave in Oct. 1891 but the following children survive. Edward, Frank and Boyd, of Kylertown; Mrs. D. P. Yocum, of Winburne; Mrs. John Neil, Pittsburg; and Misses Anna and Maud at home. The following brothers and sisters also survives: Thomas, residing in Iowa; Francis, near Tyrone; William, State College; Mrs. Israel Corral, Mrs. J. M. Rager, Mrs. Fred Weibley and Miss Matilda McBath, all of State College.

The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon in the Keylertown Presbyterian church and interment was made in the Kylertown cemetery.

Hickory Getting Scarce.

Automobile and carriage manufacturers along with the men of the allied vehicle industries, are giving very serious considerations to the question of the future supply of hickory timber. This wood, which is one of the most important of all woods, since no satisfactory substitute of it has been found, plays a more important part among the commercial timbers than many people realize.

For automobile and carriage wheels, where strength, toughness and resiliency are essential qualities, no other wood has been found in this country that will take the place of hickory. Manufacturers say that no steel or wire spoke has yet been found that will withstand the wear and tear of the hickory spoke and for this reason the welfare of the vehicle industry seems dependent upon the conservation of the hickory supply.

New Pastor for Evangelical Church.

The Central Pennsylvania Conference of the United Evangelical church which met at Berwick closed its sessions Tuesday by the announcing of the appointments by Bishop Heil. Rev. W. B. Cox who has served the Bellefonte congregation during the past four years has been appointed to fill the Altoona charge. He will be succeeded in Bellefonte by Rev. J. F. Hower. Nearby appointments are as follows: Altoona, W. B. Cox; Bellwood, J. F. Shultz; Bellefonte, J. F. Hower; Bellefonte circuit, G. W. Frey; Howard, W. W. Rhoads; Nittany, M. E. Bartholomew; Centre Hall, J. R. Sechrist Rebersburg, S. A. Snyder; Spring Mills, H. B. Snook; Millheim, C. F. Garret; Lock Haven, C. W. Finkbinder.

MISSIONARY CONVENTION

Delegates From all Over the World Assemble in Pittsburg.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

Auspicious Beginning of the Young People's Missionary Movement—3500 Were Present.

NOTED SPEAKERS MAKE ADDRESSES

Pittsburg, March 11th.—With 3,500 persons actively participating, half of the number being delegates from all parts of the world, the first international convention of the Young People's Missionary movement convened here Tuesday in Music Hall of Pittsburg Exposition.

The convention represents 14,000,000 persons and is one of the largest gatherings of the kind ever held. Judging from the sessions today it will also be one of the most successful.

At a session held on Tuesday night in Exposition Hall three miles of moving pictures illustrating the missionary fields of the world were shown for the first time. At old City Hall and several churches throughout the city overflow meetings were held. These meetings were very enthusiastic. The devotional exercises were in charge of Rev. Dr. John Willis Baer, president of Occidental College, Los Angeles, Cal., who will also preside during the convention.

One of the interesting announcements made was the plan for holding the sixth world's Sunday school convention in Washington, June 4 and 5, 1910. This convention will represent 26,000,000 persons in more than 50 countries.

Addresses were made by C. C. Michener, of New York, general secretary of the Young People's Movement of the United States and Canada; Rev. I. Vance, Newark, N. J., on "The Resurrection Gift;" and on the foreign missionary movement, by Kenneth MacLennan, Great Britain; Rev. J. L. Gerdice, Korea, and Rev. Arthur H. Ewing on India.

The program for today includes five twenty-five minute addresses on North America, South America, Africa, Southern Asia and Eastern Asia. In the afternoon native, christians from Korea, Japan, India, and China will speak.

Mrs. Nannie Jackson.

Once again we are called upon to record the death of one of our estimable citizens in the person of Mrs. Nannie Jackson, wife of Abraham Jackson who departed this life on Sunday March 8th 1908 at 2.30 p. m. at their home 205 East High street. Mrs. Jackson was born at Buffalo Run this county, March 19th 1861, and was 47 years and 11 days old at the time of her death. She had many warm friends in Bellefonte who will miss her. She has been a member of St. Pauls A. M. E. church at this place for more than 27 years, although she was situated so as not to be able to attend upon all of the public services, she never failed to meet her financial obligations.

Sister Jackson has left the following to survive her, Abraham V. Jackson, her husband, Albert, of Chicago; Mrs. Florence Syfax of Washington, D. C.; Rebecca Emery, of Bethlehem, Pa.; Leveina and George, late of Pittsburg, Pa.; Grace, of Philadelphia; Katie, Helen, Margie, Louisa and Abraham jr. at home. The funeral took place on Wednesday at 2.30 p. m. from their residence on High street. Rev. C. P. Herrington officiating.

Engage 700 Operators.

The Pennsylvania railroad has made provisions for meeting the federal nine-hour law for operators and dispatchers in the railroad service, which went into effect Thursday. Seven hundred additional operators will be required. The Pennsylvania will reply to a certain extent on its telephone service, which has been extended. The company has been taking men on since October, and while many operators are to be had, most of its men, it is said, were trained in the school opened in September at Bedford. Young men are instructed in the duties of a station agent as well as dispatcher.

YMCA Again Victorious.

One of the fastest games ever known was played in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Friday night between the strong Dickinson Seminary and the Y. M. C. A., in which the Y. M. C. A. won the laurels by the score of 43-14. This game has been looked forward too by every basket ball fan in town for the last two months and it certainly came up to the expectations of all. The game was fast from the start to the finish, the Y. M. C. A. in the lead with the exception of the first few minutes of the first half.

There was no special star in the game as every one of the Y. M. C. A. men played as equal as could be, each trying to do their best to win, and they certainly deserve all the credit given or to be given to any team of such standing.

The Dickinson Seminary men were larger in both size and weight than the Bellefonte boys but they made it up in other ways.

As referee Rev. J. Allison Platts although not a professional, came up to the standing of one old in the business as he showed no partiality to either team.

There was a fair sized crowd at the game but not enough to see the boys through expenses. The Y. M. C. A. goes to Renovo next Friday where they expect to add another victory. The Renovo papers have them already beaten but they pay no attention to the papers whatever.

Death at Aaronsburg.

Mrs. Rebecca Musser, wife of Absalom Musser, died at her home in Aaronsburg early Monday morning. Last Friday she was taken ill with pneumonia and gradually grew worse till death called her at half past one o'clock.

Mrs. Musser was a daughter of George Emerick and was born in Potter township in October 1830, and was over 77 years of age at the time of her death. In 1853 she was married to Absalom Musser and they have since resided in Haines township in the vicinity of Aaronsburg. Early in life she united with the Lutheran church and has long been a consistent member of that congregation. She was attentive to her religious duties and performed many acts of mercy.

Besides the husband the following children survive: Clarence of Aaronsburg; Howard, of Woodward; Robert, of Spring Mills; Mitchell, of Iowa; and Mrs. Lizzie Erhard, of Kansas.

Funeral services were held at the home in Aaronsburg Wednesday forenoon at 10:30 o'clock, Rev. Schoeder officiating. Interment was made in the Lutheran cemetery, Aaronsburg.

Sad Death at Pleasant Gap.

A sad death occurred at Pleasant Gap early Friday morning when Ellsworth Ira, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Herman was called away. About five weeks ago he was taken ill with pneumonia, which afterwards developed into an abcess of the liver. On Thursday this abcess was ruptured causing the young man's death at one o'clock Friday morning.

The deceased was born at Rockview on September 5, 1892, making him 15 years and 6 months of age at the time of his demise. He was a very promising young man and his untimely death is mourned by a large circle of friends.

Besides the sorrowing parents the following brothers and sister survive: Miller, Edith, Wallace, Harold, John and Elsie, the latter being a twin sister of her deceased brother.

The friends met at the house Sunday morning at ten o'clock and proceed to the Lutheran church where services were conducted by Rev. Durkee. Interment was made in the Pleasant Gap cemetery.

Reported Dead, He Dies.

Aged John Probst, who six months ago was reported dead at the Williamsport hospital in mistake for another patient who had died, his children being summoned from the west before the mistake was discovered, passed away Wednesday.

He was a rifle expert and had killed over 70 deer during his career, besides furnishing golden eagles to a number of Knights of the Golden Eagle lodges of the state.

CHILDREN ARE BURNED

Panic Follows Outbreak of Fire in School Near Cleveland

PARENTS WERE FRANTIC

Hundreds of Pupils Pack the Exits and Perish in the Mass of Flames

FLAMES STARTED FROM A FURNACE

Cleveland, March 5.—Fire breaking out with great suddenness in the North Collingwood school trapped a hundred children and a terrible panic resulted, scores being trampled to death. The exact number is not known, but will probably reach 160 or 170.

Agonized parents are frantically trying to make their way into the structure in a search for missing children but are restrained by police.

When the blaze started the door connecting the upper part of the building was opened by an attendant. This was a fatal mistake as the back draughts forced the smoke into the rooms. The fire drill was tried by the pulpits but they were frantic and it failed to stop the panic.

The fire department was quickly on the scene, but did not have a sufficient number of ladders to make effective rescues. When the firemen reached the third floor some of the children were alive, but the doors were chocked by tiny bodies. The rescue work was slow.

The high school class occupies the first floor and escaped without injury.

The interior of the store room was a seething furnace when the door was open, but after a hard struggle the fire was controlled.

When the greatest number of deaths occurred the scene was one of indescribable horror. Lying in twisted knots, clasping each other in death grips, boys and girls were lying in ugly heaps. In their death agonies they had torn the faces and trampled on each other.

The fire spread with amazing rapidity, the firemen working under great peril, by reason of the intense heat cracking the walls.

A great crowd rushed for Collingwood, seven miles out of Cleveland. The two hose houses are converted into morgues, the bodies being arranged in rows and covered with sheets torn from beds. Parents fought for entry, breaking through the guard. In most instances identification is impossible. There are numerous instances of heroism on the part of teachers and older scholars.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 6th.—Twenty-four hours after the disaster which swept into eternity approximately one-third of the school children of North Collinwood, the death roll numbered 161. Of these 131 had been identified at the Lake Shore morgue, while thirty bodies remain in a condition of mutilation probably forever beyond the chances of being recognized. The work of digging in the ruins of the Lakeview school house in further search for remains of children still missing began with the break of day. Dawn found mothers and fathers waiting about the fire ruined building after having spent the night in an effort to find their children's remains at the extemporized morgue. But little was brought forth during the day that would satisfy their longings, and it is believed tonight that all the bodies that can be removed from the ruins have been taken out.

In an effort to fix the cause and responsibility for the holacaust various investigations were set under way today. Coroner Burke issued subpoenas for the seven surviving teachers of the Lakeview school. The inquest was begun this morning, when a number of witnesses were examined without however, developing any testimony that was beyond mere opinion.

An investigation conducted by the Collinwood school board which lasted far into the night, at which a number of survivors of the horror told their stories, brought forth these facts.

That one of the inner doors at the west entrance of the school was closed and fastened while children were piling up against it in the passage; wing partitions in the vestibule narrowed the exit by at least three feet; the flames came first for a closet below the stairway at the east entrance; the closet contained lime and sawdust; three little girls had been found hiding in play in the closet earlier in the morning; there was but one fire escape, and that its use was never taught as a part of the fire drill. Survivors among the teachers estimate that only two or three minutes passed from the time of the alarm until all escape was cut off. The building was a fair sample of the kind of school construction in use in small towns. The halls and stairways were enclosed between interior brick walls, forming a huge flue through which the flames shot up with gret rapidity.

METHODIST CONFERENCE.

Central Pennsylvania is One of the Strongest of the Denomination.

Methodists in this section are already looking forward to the fortieth session of the Central Pennsylvania conference of the Methodist church, which will convene in York on March 18, and will continue one week. The sessions will be held in the First Methodist Episcopal church, at the corner of Beaver and Philadelphia streets, of which Rev. J. Ellis Bell is pastor.

Bishop Luther B. Wilson, of Chattanooga, Tenn., will preside. The conference is composed of the following districts: Harrisburg, Altoona, Danville, Juniata and Williamsport.

The Central Pennsylvania conference is one of the strong conferences of the denomination, and numbers over 300 ministers. These preachers minister to 620 separate congregations and look after 633 Sunday schools. Besides the ministers, there will be in attendance the lay delegates and their alternates, who will swell the attendance to the 1,000 mark.

The membership of the Methodist church within the conference is about 74,600. The number of churches is 620, and the value of the church property is $3,679,235. The number of parsonages is 223, with a value of $607,920. The missionary offerings amount to $66,454 and the church extension offerings to $3,960. The conference also makes the following contributions: Freedman's Aid, $3,613; education, $3,745; tract and Bible societies, $1,700; Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, $5,193; Womans Home Missionary Society, $6,850.

Of Interest To Women.

To such women as are not seriously out of health, but who have exacting duties to perform, either in the way of household cares or in social duties and functions which seriously tax their strength, as well as to nursing mothers, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has proved a most valuable supporting tonic and invigorating nervine. By its timely use, much serious sickness and suffering may be avoided. The operating table and the surgeons' knife, would, it is believed, seldom have to be employed if this most valuable woman's remedy were resorted to in good time. The "Favorite Prescription" has proven a great boon to expectant mothers by preparing the system for the coming of baby, thereby rendering childbirth safe, easy, and almost painless.

Bear in mind, please that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is not a secret or patent medicine, against which the most intelligent people are quite naturally averse, because of the uncertainty as to their composition and harmless character, but is a MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, a full list of all its ingredients being printed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper. An examination of this list of ingredients will disclose the fact that it is non-alcoholic in its composition, chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine taking the place of the commonly used alcohol, in its make-up. In this connection it may not be out of place to state that the "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. Pierce is the only medicine put up for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, and sold through druggists, all the ingredients of which have the unanimous endorsement of all the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice, and that too as remedies for the ailments for which "Favorite Prescription" is recommended.

A little book of these endorsements will be sent to any address, post-paid, and absolutely free if you request same by postal card, or letter, of Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Woman's World

MME. TEKLA PLANEL.

A Woman's Plan to Help American Students at the Conservatories.

Mme. Tekla Planel of Paris and her husband, M. Louis Planel, both noted musical artists in this country, have arrived in New York city. Mme. Planel is about to put in operation a plan to assist American girls who are musical students at the French conservatories.

Much has been written about the trials and tribulations of American girls who have spent time and money to obtain a musical education abroad and then been unsuccessful in obtaining a hearing when they have become proficient, according to the standards of the foreign schools.

It is to pave the way in this country for such as have received this training and yearn for a chance to be heard that Mme. Planel is pledged on this her first trip to America.

MME. TEKLA PLANEL.

She comes specially commissioned by the French government on this mission, and she and her husband are further intrusted with the plan to familiarize Americans with the music of the French composers, those outside of Massenet and Saint-Saens being comparatively unknown.

Mme. Planel, who originated the idea of giving recitations to a musical accompaniment, became interested some years ago in the score of music students in Paris who, after obtaining a musical education, were thrown upon their own resources without having had an opportunity of showing what they could do. Consequently in 1903 she organized these girls into L'Union Artistique de Femme Francess. This included an orchestra of ninety pieces, in which all the instruments were played by women.

According to Mme. Planel, it has proved tremendously successful.

"In this way every girl who has talent, or thinks she has, can have the opportunity of showing what she can do in practice," said Mme. Planel. "This not only helps the girls to become known, but they can make a living at the same time, as they are all paid.

"All of the great French artists have conducted their own scores at these concerts, and so the students have the benefit of the training. Among the modern French composers who have conducted and presented their own compositions are Emil Passard, Saint-Saens, Paul Ridal, leader of the Grand Opera orchestra; August Chapuis, Gabriel Pares, leader of the Garde Republicaine, and others. Of the old composers, like Bach, Wagner and the like, the orchestra has been led by my husband, who is a violinist and composer.

"There is no speculation about the plan, for if there is any money left from the concerts it goes into a fund to help girls in distress. Many suffer great privations both during and after their studies are completed. Now, what I hope to do here is to spread the gospel of my plan, which is to do for American girls in Paris what has been done for the girls of my own nationality."

How to Cover a Bridge Table.

It is said that the etiquette of bridge must be as strictly adhered to as must the very rules themselves, and one of the most important etiquette laws is that the table at which the game is played shall be of correct height and size and in perfect keeping with the furnishings of the room. No longer is the cheap wooden table with its dull felt cover permissible, but fortunately an attractive bridge table is an easy matter to make at home, and to have the card table in keeping with the style of room there need be no added expense to be considered.

The newest bridge tables are less than a yard square and made of the lightest pine wood, so as to be easily portable. A square yard of material will therefore cover the table completely, and this cover may be either brocade, heavy corded silk, panne velvet, tapestry, chintz or felt of a shade corresponding to the color scheme of the room. For a country house a bright French chintz is attractive, while a good piece of tapestry is smart for a library or den. Brocade for a handsome French period room is most frequently made use of, while panne velvet in soft shades of green, pink and blue is often used and makes a delightfully soft cover and one that is excellent to play on. The felt is still preferred by numbers of card enthusiasts, but the light colors are now generally preferred, although with a dark background it is unquestionably easier to distinguish the cards one from another.

To put on the cover is an easy matter. The material is first stretched tightly over the table and then cut so as to leave about an inch beyond what is necessary to turn in to prevent fraying. The brocade, felt or whatever the material chances to be is then nailed to the wooden rim with large thumb tacks or brass headed nails, or if desired the material may be drawn down underneath the edge of the table and fastened there with small tacks.

Proper Use of Cold Cream.

To say that the use of cold cream as a face cleaner makes the hair grow is an exploded fallacy, says a noted skin specialist. "There is no reason to leave the cream on the face overnight. Five minutes is plenty of time. Then rub it off with a soft cloth and wash in warm water, using a dash of cold before drying. This method keeps the skin smooth and clean without enlarging the pores and cultivating blackheads, nor does it make the face delicate for winter winds.

"If grease made the hair grow so easily as some people believe, would there be any baldheaded men or would women use so much false hair? Think about that and all your fears will be set at rest."

Keep Bills.

It is well to keep every bill, paid or not, for an indefinite period. One never knows when mistakes may occur or when dishonesty may be attempted. The steel bill files are all very well, though they are not remarkable for their neatness or order, but a better way is to use a large scrap book and paste the bills in alphabetical order, according to the names of those by whom they are preferred, therein. If possible, it would be well to prepare the leaves like those of an address book, so that it would be easy to find any bill at any time. Of course this is only a cheaper homemade substitute for a regular letter file, which is the very best thing for the purpose.

"Kitchen Minded."

This epithet is applied to women who are too much engrossed with domestic affairs. The world is evidently meant as a reproach. No doubt there are women who give too much time to the kitchen, as there are others who give too little. Who will undertake to decide just how much time is enough? That a woman should grow like the place in which she spends most of her time is not strange. She might become parlor minded, but many of us, like George Eliot, enjoy a clean kitchen best of all. What we all need is broad contact with life along with our specialty, so that we may always be human minded.—Circle.

Sleeping In Silk.

Silk bedclothes are the latest fad. Sheets and pillowcases are made of the purest silk, and the pillowslips are gorgeously embroidered.

Of course only very rich people can afford to indulge in the luxury, for the sheets cost anywhere from $75 to $250 a pair, according to the amount of embroidery on them.

The silk used, which has, of course, to be especially woven to the required width, is generally surah or china, the former being the most expensive.

A Memory Test.

A professor of mnemonics had gone to lecture at or near Canterbury. After the lecture was finished he had to wait for his London train. It was a most comfortless day, and he retired to an inn for shelter and refreshment. To pass the time he began to exhibit his feats of memory to the yokels in the inn parlor, and one and all were thunderstruck except the waiter. There is always one skeptic in every communion, whether of saints or sinners. Do what he would he could not mitigate the acrid smile of acid incredulity of that glorified potman! In the midst of one of his most difficult feats the whistle sounded of the "Only train to London tonight!" and he rushed off to catch it. He caught it at the station, and his reputation caught it in the inn parlor, for the waiter, coming in with some ordered refreshments and finding him gone, pointed to the corner where he had been sitting and exclaimed, "Silly 'umbug, he's forgot his umbrella!"—Young Man.

Moslem Prayer Rugs.

Prayer rugs were evidently invented for the purpose of providing the worshipers with one absolutely clean place on which to offer prayers. It is not lawful for a Moslem to pray on any place not perfectly clean, and unless each one has his own special rug he is not certain that the spot has not been polluted. It does not matter to these followers of Mohammed how unclean a rug that is on the floor may be, because over it they place the prayer rug when their devotions begin.

Nature's Vengeance.

Pliny informs us that twelve cities in Asia Minor were swallowed up in one night. In the year 115 the city of Antioch and a great part of the adjacent country were buried by an earthquake. About 300 years after it was again destroyed, along with 40,000 inhabitants, and after an interval of sixty years was a third time overturned, with the loss of not less than 60,000 souls. In 1692 the city of Port Royal, in Jamaica, was destroyed by an earthquake, and the houses sank into a gulf forty fathoms deep. In 1693 an earthquake occurred in Sicily which either destroyed or greatly damaged fifty-four cities. The city of Catalonia was utterly overthrown, 19,000 inhabitants of the city perishing in the ruins. In 1755 Lisbon was destroyed by an earthquake, and it buried under its ruins above 50,000 inhabitants. In August, 1822, two-thirds of the city of Aleppo, containing a population of 200,000, were destroyed by an earthquake. Thirty thousand of its inhabitants were buried in the ruins.

Held Down the Speaker.

The sanctity of the speaker is an inviolable law of parliamentary England, yet once the necessities of the nation were so great that an assault and battery had to be made upon his sacred person. It was in the third parliament of Charles I. that the angry commons framed their petition of rights. This cut at the very root of the king's prerogative, and among those in the house who opposed it was Mr. Speaker. Upon Sir John Elliott moving its acceptance the speaker essayed to leave the chair, which would, of course, have proved fatal to the bill. But they were ready for him, and Hollis and Valentine seized him, one on each side, and literally held him in the chair until the formality of the reading was over. So vital was the petition considered that Cromwell said in the lobby afterward, "Had we been defeated I should have left England tonight."—London Chronicle.

Where the Shoe Pinched.

It was easy for Mr. Randall to bear with his wife's remarkable decision of character at all times, but her obstinacy he found most difficult to endure.

"I can't quite comprehend her," he confided to his brother after one trying experience. "Many years as we have been married, she still surprises me. Why, all in the same day, sometimes in the same hour, she will settle a disturbance in the kitchen, put the children just where they belong, adjust some matter in the church and then, when her judgment ought to be at its best, display the most astounding obstinacy in attempting to regulate my goings out or comings in. It's—it's incomprehensible."

A Nautical Secret.

The Man and His Job

The psychology of making good, when brought down to its final analysis resolves itself into two factors—work plus success. Hard work without results or encouragement, seldom leaves anything but a disheartened man who has failed.

Thousands of faithful men with brains, in spite of hard work and perseverence have fallen short of the mark. They saw no results and gave up the game.

But, on the other hand, fortune begets fortune and every victory is the cornerstone of another triumph.

A second order comes easier than the first, and a signed contract fills a salesman with an enthusiasm against which a thousand turndowns cannot avail. The initial business venture, if successful makes a man more likely to win out in a subsequent enterprise.

With the knowledge of making good comes a physical effect on a man's consciousness which drives him on to a bigger and and harder proposition.

Furthermore, the amount of work a man can do is directly proportional to the results which he gets. Whether clerk salesman or manager, your ultimate success depends on the results you accomplish day by day.

Success is the strongest incentive to hard work, and therein lies the secret of making good.

More Than Fifty Cities on Hand.

More than fifty cities were represented by delegates at the opening of the prosperity convention which is in session in Baltimore this week. This big gathering of business men who are determined to do all they can to restore confidence is an excellent example of the American pluck and optimism. The Optimist clubs of the various southern and western cities were the moving spirit in the convention. Their motto is "Be an Optimist and Smile." Baltimore made a splendid preparation to entertain the 10,000 delegates that had been invited to the convention. Business men's organizations, commercial clubs, civic societies and scores of kindred associations were represented at the opening reception and enthusiasm was unbounded.

Good Imitation of Maple Syrup.

It would take an expert to taste any difference in a syrup made over the following receipt and the finest kind of maple syrup: Boil eight quarts of broken corn cobs covered with water, about a half day. As the water boils away replenish it, having at the end of the half day about three quarts of strained substance. Boil one dozen apples and strain through a bag, having about a pint of this substance. Then to the three quarts of cob juice and one pint of apple juice add five pounds of brown sugar and boil without stirring to the consistency of maple syrup and you will find it fit for a king.

Trials of Writers.

George Eliot in one of her letters, referring to her novel "Daniel Deronda," writes as follows: "My book seems to me so unlikely ever to be finished in a way that will make it worth while giving to the world that it is a kind of glass in which I behold my infirmities." Again of the same work, "As usual, I am suffering much from doubt as to the worth of what I am doing and fear lest I may not be able to complete it so as to make it a contribution to literature and not a mere addition to the heap of books."

Montesquieu wrote thus to a friend: "I thought I should have killed myself these three months to finish a morceau (for his great work) which I wished to insert on the origin and revolutions of the civil laws of France. You will read it in three hours, but I do assure you that it cost me so much labor that it has whitened my hair."

The eminent modern French writer Gustave Flaubert suffered tortures in his efforts to attain perfection. When composing, he would sometimes spring to his feet, shriek aloud and call himself "blockhead," "idiot." No sooner was one doubt removed than another arose. At other times he would sit at his writing table as one magnetized, lost in contemplation. His friend Turgeneff declared that it was exceedingly touching to see his struggles with language. He would work a whole day and sometimes all night on a single page.

Traps of the Ant Lion.

We read of the tiger traps in India—great pits dug in the ground and covered lightly with pliant bamboo. The tiger steps upon the false top and before it can retreat is precipitated into a trap. Walking along a sandy road, look for tiny circular pits sunk below the surface and then sit down and watch an exciting episode in the life of the little still hunter which has dug the pitfall. It is invisible, and for some time the whole affair seems lifeless. Then an ant comes blundering along and without warning topples over the edge and begins to slide down the incline. But the insect fights hard for life and seems about to make its escape, when, lo, the sand grains heave upward at the bottom and with a jerk are hurled like a miniature catapult at the ant, knocking it over and rolling it to the bottom. The ant lion, for such it is, now seizes its prey and after sucking its juices casts the dry body away and mends its pit against the coming of another victim.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Scientists' Corner.

Lord Kelvin was buried in Westminster abbey in the spot which by analogy we might call scientists' corner, but it is such a very ugly phrase. If pilgrimages are made there the pilgrims will be of another type from those whose shrine is poets' corner. And yet, when one thinks of the poets, how many of them have opened up such wide spaces of imagination as Newton and Herschel, Darwin and Kelvin? If Shakespeare had known such men he would have admitted their right to take their place with the lover, the madman and the poet who are of "imagination all compact." But this conception has not penetrated the popular mind, which is hardly equal to pure imagination unadulterated with emotion and a good many primitive instincts.—London Saturday Review.

Getting His Money's Worth.

A New Hampshire man tells of a tight fisted man of affairs in a town of that state who until recently had never been observed to take an interest in church matters. Suddenly, however, he became a regular attendant at divine service, greatly to the astonishment of his fellow townsmen.

"What do you think of the case of old Ketchum?" said one of the business men of the place to a friend. "Is it true that he has got religion?"

"Well, hardly," replied the other. "The fact is it's entirely a matter of business with him. I am in a position to know that about a year ago he loaned the pastor $50, which the latter was unable to pay. So there remained nothing for Ketchum but to take it out in pew rent."

Struck Out.

Dr. C., who always employs two servants, man and wife, was talking to a patient one day about a couple he had just discharged because the man drank.

He remarked: "It is so strange, but it is always the way with a man and wife. If one is good, the other is no good."

The patient asked him, "How is it with you and Mrs. C.?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Home Life of Genius.

The Actor (before breakfast)—Where are the papers, my dear? His Wife (an actress, absentmindedly)—C-curse you! They are far beyond your reach, thank heaven! And I'll die a thousand deaths before you can wr-r-r-r-ring the secret from—oh—er—Jack, I mean, the boy forgot to leave them this morning! —Puck.

University Tests.

One might say that the first test at Oxford is athletic ability, the next sociability and the final scholastic ability. When you have passed the first two, you are the admiration of your friends; when you have shown yourself a scholar besides, you are the admiration of your college.—Rhodes Scholar in Sunset Magazine.

When Actors Play to Actors.

"When he (Henry Irving) engaged me to play Ophelia in 1878 he asked me to go down to Birmingham to see the play, and that night I saw what I shall always consider the perfection of acting. It had been wonderful in 1874; in 1878 it was far more wonderful," wrote Ellen Terry in McClure's. "It has been said that when he had the 'advantage' of my Ophelia his Hamlet 'improved.' I don't think so. He was always quite independent of the people with whom he played. The Birmingham night he knew I was there. He played—I say it without vanity—for me. We players are not above that weakness, if it be a weakness. If ever anything inspires us to do our best it is the presence in the audience of some fellow artist who must, in the nature of things, know more completely than any one what we intend, what we do, what we feel. The response from such a member of the audience flies across the footlights to us like a flame. I felt it once when I played Olivia before Eleanora Duse. I felt that she felt it once when she played Marguerite Gautier for me."

The Topsyturvydom of Religion.

At the opening of King Edward VII.'s first parliament he had to repeat after the lord chancellor an oath which condemned in almost brutal words all things papistical. Yet held aloft by a Protestant peer for all Protestants to reverence was a veritable emblem of papal supremacy—a quaint little bonnet of crimson velvet turned up with ermine. This is the cap of maintenance, and so sacred is it that no hands but royalty may finger it. Thus the premier marquis, whose hereditary right it is to carry it, balanced it somewhat after the fashion of a conjurer upon a white staff. This cap was granted to Henry VIII. by Pope Leo X. In the middle ages it was held as symbolic of the overlord, only being granted to vassals and feudatories whom the lord wished to honor, so that it implies as nothing else could the supremacy of the pope over the kings of England.—London Standard.

What Makes the Heart Beat?

Professor Jacques Loeb, the celebrated biologist, in his book, "Dynamics of Living Matter," has shown that a strip cut from the ventricle of the heart put in a solution of chloride of sodium will continue to beat for a number of days, until putrefaction sets in. He says this can be done with an ordinary muscle after it has been extirpated from the body. This would tend to prove that the heart is a chemical machine and that it is all due to chemical action. The muscular contraction is probably due to the substitution of sodium for calcium salts in the cells of the muscles.

The difficulty of this theory is that it does not explain the control of the muscles. It is plain that the problem of control is not solved by the chemical theory.

A Fair Chance.

Dressed in the latest and most approved motor cycling costume, with goggles all complete, the motor cyclist gayly toot-tooted his way by Regent's park toward the zoo. Suddenly he slackened, dismounted and said to a small, grubby urchin:

"I say, my boy, am I right for the zoo?"

The boy gasped at so strange a sight and thought it must be some new animal for the gardens.

"You may be all right if they have a spare cage," he said when he could find his tongue, "but you'd ha' stood a far better chance if you'd 'd a tail!"—London Answers.

Lewis Carroll's Humor.

An English magazine gives some amusing pieces of Lewis Carroll's humor from the forgotten pages of Oxford pamphlets. During the election at Oxford in 1865 he gave vent to the following Euclidean definition: "Plain superficiality is the character of a speech in which, any two points being taken, the speaker is found to lie wholly with regard to those two points." A note is also given on the right appreciation of examiners: "A takes in ten books and gets a third class; B takes in the examiners and gets a second. Find the value of the examiners in terms of books, also their value in terms when no examination is held."

Solicitous.

An old lady unaccustomed to traveling innocently seated herself in a first class carriage, although she only had a third class ticket. The guard, thinking she had made a mistake, popped his head into the carriage and inquired, "Are you first class, ma'am?"

"No, sir, not altogether," she replied, "but much brighter than I was, thank you."—London Scraps.

Ignorance Not Bliss.

"There is a certain gnawing uncertainty about calling on people who speak a different language from their servants," remarked the woman who does. "You can never tell whether they are saying, 'Make another cup of tea, Katie; I have company,' or 'She always drops in about tea time, confound her! Pour some more hot water in the pot.'"—New York Press.

Saw For Himself.

A man carrying a looking glass said to a newsboy, "Come here and look into this glass and you will see a donkey."

"How did you find that out?" retorted the boy.—London Express.

Opposites Often Wed.

"Miss, you are a holden. Nobody will ever care to marry a boisterous girl."

"Don't worry, mother. I'll find some nice, giristerous boy."—Kansas City Journal.

"At Prayers" and a Seat.

The scramble for seats in the house of commons is regulated by certain rules. A member present at prayers has a right to the place he then occupies until the rising of the house. Each evening stands absolutely independent and by itself, and therefore the title to a seat secured by attendance at prayer lapses at the termination of the sitting. On the table in a little box is a supply of small white cards with the words "At prayers" in large old English letters. Obtaining one of these cards and writing his name on it under the words "At prayers," the member slips it into a receptacle in the bench at the back of the seat and thus secures the place for the night against all comers. He may immediately leave the house and remain away as long as he pleases. The place may be occupied by another member in the meantime, but whenever the master of the seat, the gentleman whose autograph is written on the card in the little brass slit, returns to the chamber the temporary occupant of the seat must give place to him.

He Tamed the Princess.

William the Conqueror when he was only the Duke of Normandy had fallen in love with the Princess Mathilde of Flanders. She was proud and haughty and had refused the noble lovers who were anxious to win her hand. The wily Norman studied her character carefully and when he had mapped out his plan of campaign rode into the town one day when she, at the head of a party, was going from church. He sprang from his horse by her side, boxed her ears soundly, pulled her off her steed, rolled her vigorously in the mud, told her that he loved her and rode away. The astonished princess was infuriated and swore all kinds of vengeance. After her rage cooled down, however, she said to her father that upon reflection she had come to the conclusion that the only man who could treat Mathilde of Flanders in that manner should be her husband. They were married, and the union turned out to be one of the happiest marriages in the history of royalty.

The Prophetic Gift.

That there are persons today who possess the somewhat uncanny gift of being able to predict future events is probably true. The wife of the late Sir Richard Burton, the famous traveler and linguist, not to mention other instances of her weird gift, announced the very first time she saw Burton, at the time a perfect stranger whom she had met quite casually, that he would be her husband. At the present moment, too, there is said to be a man who has manifested such an extraordinary faculty of predicting things that are about to take place that a number of medical men have purchased the reversion of his brain in order that they may examine that organ after death to see if it shows any special development to account for his wonderful gift.—Grand Magazine.

A Cane In Defense.

"If you want to keep off holdup men," said an old detective to the observer, "carry a cane. A holdup man is more afraid of a cane than he is of a revolver. He's deathly afraid that the man carrying it will jab it in his face or eyes or get the end of it in his mouth. On this account they're just as much afraid of a small light stick as they are of a heavy one. There are so many different ways of using a cane that a man doesn't know just which way to guard against it. And any man can use it. Nine men out of ten who carry revolvers couldn't hit the side of a barn with them, and the 'holdups' know it, but it doesn't take any skill or practice to learn to slambang away with a walking stick."—Columbus Dispatch.

The Statue of Liberty.

"I wonder if local mariners appreciate the optical illusion which the statue of Liberty presents to a man arriving in this port for the first time," said the skipper of an East Indian tramp, who a few days before had entered New York harbor upon his first voyage here. "I saw the statue before I got to the Narrows, and it seemed as if it were just about where quarantine is. Later the thing seemed about abeam of the Kill von Kull. It kept getting farther and farther away, until I finally wondered whether I should ever bring it abeam. I suppose its great height accounts for this."—New York Post.

May Do It Now.

"In the olden times it is said that it was possible for a man to render himself invisible."

"Pshaw! That's not at all remarkable. Men in this country are doing it every day."

"You don't say so! How do they manage it?"

"By marrying famous women!"

How It Was Becoming.

"That dress is becoming, my dear," said the man who thinks he is a diplomat.

She looked at him coldly for a moment and then replied:

"Yes. It is becoming threadbare."

It Was a Pleasing Attraction.

"Under Southern Skies" was the popular attraction at Garman's Opera house Friday night and a full house greeted the company on this its second visit to Bellefonte. The special scenery carried by this company represented the old fashioned comes of the southern aristocracy. The plot of the play is very interesting and this interest never flags during the entire evening's performance. The surprise party along with the Hallowe'en party and pumpkin dance were attractive features of the play. The wedding scene and the revalation of a great family secret at the last moment was a very impressive part of the play. One cannot help admiring "Aunt Dosby" in her faithfulness and her endeavor to allay all ill feelings.

Throughout the play there was a display of all types of southerners, with their hot-headedness, their chivalry and their spirit of lavish hospitality. The whole story is an absorbing one and is played with a fascination. Manager Garman was very much pleased with the many commendable words he received from his patrons.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

The Record in Bellefonte is a Unique One.

If the reader has a "bad back" or any kidney ill and is looking for relief and cure, better depend on the only remedy endorsed by people you know. Doan's Kidney Pills relieve quickly—cure permanently. Bellefonté citizens testify to this. Here is a case of it:

Mrs: Emma J. Davis of E. Logan St. Bellefonte, Pa. says; I have a great deal of confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills, and have already recommended them in a published testimonial in 1897. I told how I had been relieved of kidney complaint and backache which had kept me suffering for years. Doan's Kidney Pills did this for me when other remedies had failed. Whenever I feel any symptom of my old trouble I send to F. Potts Green's drug store for a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills and it never requires more than a few doses to get me right."

EARLY RISERS
The famous little pills.

Remember that when the stomach nerves fail or weaken, Dyspepsia or Indigestion must always follow. But, strengthen these same weak inside nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and then see how quickly health will again return. Weak Heart and Kidney nerves can also be strengthened with the Restorative, where Heart pains, palpitation, or kidney weakness is found. Don't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is wrong. Go to the cause of these ailments. Strengthen these weak inside nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and get well. A simple, single test will surely tell. Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

—"I suffered habitually from constipation. Doan's Regulets relieved and strengthened the bowels, so that they have been regular ever since."—A. R Davis, grocer, Sulphur Springs, Tex.

Grippe is sweeping the country. Stop it with Preventics, before it gets deeply seated. To check early colds with these little Candy Cold Cure Tablets is surely sensible and safe. Preventics contain no Quinine, no laxative, nothing harsh or sickening. Pneumonia would never appear if early colds were promptly broken. Also good for feverish children. Large box, 48 tablets, 25 cents. Vest pocket boxes 5 cents. Sold by Greens Pharmacy

Don't cough your head off when you can get a guaranteed Remedy in Bees Laxative Cough Syrup. It is especially recommended for children as its pleasant to take, is a gentle laxative thus expelling the phlegm from the system. For coughs, colds, croup, whooping-cough hoarseness and all Bronchial trouble. Guaranteed. Sold by Krumrines.

Kodol For Indigestion.
Relieves sour stomach, palpitation of the heart. Digests what you eat.

Stimulation Without Irritation.

That is the Watchword. That is what Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup does. Cleanses and stimulates the bowels without irritation in any form.

Stop That Cold

To check early colds or Grippe with "Preventics" means sure defeat for Pneumonia. To stop a cold with Preventics is safer than to let it run and be obliged to cure it afterwards. To be sure, Preventics will cure even a deeply seated cold, but taken early—at the sneeze stage—they break, or head off these early colds. That's surely better. That's why they are called Preventics.

Preventics are little Candy Cold Cures. No Quinine, no physic, nothing sickening. Nice for the children—and thoroughly safe too. If you feel chilly, if you sneeze, if you nose all over, think of Preventics. Promptness may also save half your usual sickness. And don't forget your child, if there is feverishness, night or day. Herein probably lies Preventics' greatest efficiency. Sold in 25c boxes for the pocket, also in 25c boxes of 48 Preventics. Insist on your druggists giving you

If a cough once gets into your system it acts on every muscle and fibre of the body and makes you ache all over. It especially affects the intestines and makes you constipated, so in order to get rid of a cold thoroughly and without delay you should not take anything that will tend to constipate. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup acts upon the bowels and thereby drives the cold out of the system. It contains no opiates it is pleasant to take and is highly recommended for children. EDITORIAL.

THE one effective cure for anarchy is the gallows.

THE gist of the Ohio state platform is "Everybody must be for Taft."

LET us hope that Chicago makes a good job of cleaning up its anarchists.

As a rule American cities are healthy but they should be made decidely unhealthy for members of the Black Hand society.

As to a new candidate, Mr. Bryan's business is the promotion of principles, not the discovery of talent.—Washington Star.

IN the land of freedom equal opportunity and government of the people, by the people and for the people, there is no room for anarchy.

ANDREW W. Reeser who for several years has successfully conducted the Musser house at Millheim has leased a hotel at Elkland Susquehanna county.

THERE may be rumor of war in the Mongolian empires but it is hardly probable that the Chinks will make a somersault invasion of the Island Empire.

THE Williamsport Sun states that the announcement that W. P. Darrah would represent that paper was premature. Mr. Darrah will not represent it in any capacity.

SINCE the fire at the Collingwood school nearly all the school buildings in the country have been examined as to the possibility of the children being caught in a trap should there be a fire.

HETTY Green says that she would rather have her daughter marry a live, eneregetic newspaper man than any duke or court in the world. This certainly ought to get the daughter some pretty nice press notices when she does take part in a nuptial stunt.

Cleveland's Horror.

Words are inadequate for the horror that befell the Lakeview school in Collinwood, a suburb of Cleveland Wednesday. It is terrible enough to contempiate fire and panic where adults congregate, but is immeasurably more pathetic when the victims are children of tender years. But for the panic all might have escaped the fire. It may never be known why the usual school discipline and fire drill failed on this occasion, but the failure is accompanied by an appaling death list and the names of two, three and four children from single families suggests the maddening agony of loving parents.

This disaster should have the effect of arousing school authorities and communities to using the facilities afforded by other school houses for the escape of pupils under similar circumstances. It is probably often the case that in school construction more thought is given to utilization of the space than to easy exit in the event of fire. But of all buildings for public purposes the exits of the school house should have most attention to details and be made safest, because the occupants are least able to take care of themselves. The fire drills have proved excellent and should be everywhere carried to perfection.

Nothing in the Paper Today.

Frequently you pick up one o the local papers, and after glancing at the head-lines, wearily thrust it aside, remarking: "Nothing in the paper today." Did you ever stop to think what the phrase—"nothing in the paper today"—means? It means that in the day just passed that no misfortune has befallen one in our town, that no fire has wiped out a neighbor's wordly goods, that the grim angel of death has crossed no threshold of a friend, that no poor devil, haunted by the past or the misdeed of some other has crossed the divide by his own hand, that many things that ought not to happen have not happened. So the next time you pick up a paper that doesn't announce a tragedy, give a little thanks instead of grumbling because there is no news.

Denatured Alcohol.

The lack of interest in this country in the possibilities of denatured alcohol for both producer and consumer has been a source of amazement to those who took an active part in the movement to put the denatured alcohol act upon the federal statute book.

Denatured alcohol years ago passed out of the experimental stage and in Europe is such an important factor in the manufacture of a countless number of things, in addition to being much used as a source of light, heat and energy, that it was expected it almost immediately would be seized upon in this country to develop new industries, cheapen the process of others already established and help break the monopoly of the Standard Oil Company.

But nothing of the kind has happened. There is practically no demand for denatured alcohol. Few establishments except the chemists' supply houses in the big cities keep it in stock, and the average farmer, in spite of the efforts of the Department of Agriculture to educate him takes little or no use in the production.

In this the American agriculturist is far behind the farmers of France and Germany. Official reports just at hand show that a large percentage of the 45,588,299 tons of potatoes grown in Germany in 1907 was converted into alcohol subsequently denatured and used in the arts. The increase in the production of denatured alcohol during the year amounted to almost 3,000,000 gallons.

There is no reason why something similar cannot be done in this country. It probably would be found upon trial that potatoes suitable for the making of denatured alcohol could be produced in the United States much cheaper than in Germany and it is safe to say that if the people once begin to use alcohol in place of smelly kerosene, gasoline and naptha, they will never return to the old processes.—Harrisburg Patriot.

Same, but More of It.

Sitting in a Broadway restaurant the other evening were two young women who had not met for four years. One of them had grown stout and the other had admitted that she wouldn't have recognized her old friend under ordinary circumstances. They sat silently looking at each other for a moment, when the heavyweight inquired:

"What are you thinking about?"

"I was just trying to see whether your expression is the same as it used to be," said her friend.

"Just the same," the girl with the avoirdupois declared. "Only more of it."—New York Globe.

Cigar Cutters and Disease.

"No," said the Sixth avenue tobacconist, "I have no cigar cutters in my store. They're too much a menace to the public health. How? Why, every man who buys a cigar cuts the end of it off in a cutter if he sees one on the counter, but that isn't all. He has a habit of putting the end of the cigar in his mouth first, thus wetting it and preventing the dry tobacco leaf from splitting too much. If the man is afflicted with tuberculosis or any other disease, he may transfer germs to the cutter, and the next man who sticks his cigar in there to cut off the end gets them on his cigar, and in this way to his mouth."—New York Press.

ATTENTION SPORTS

All Interested in the Academy's Future and the Athletic Side of Bellefonte Life Read This!

The voting contest inaugurated in the interest of a new athletic field for the Academy and all town organizations is moving very slowly, indeed. There must be reasons for this. Surely it can not be the financial stress prevailing generally, because Garman's opera house is patronized just about as well as it ever has been and the young men and older men are smoking just as many cigars as hitherto.

When votes are only worth a penny a piece, such an excuse as "financial embarrassment" could not be assigned for the indifference to the contest, that is so manifest.

If there are any of the opinion that the Academy should not have the supreme control of the desired atoletic field, but that such an enterprise should be fostered and conducted by an "Athletic Association" to be organized in the town, Mr. Hughes, rather than have the enterprise fail, will gladly transfer all claim he has secured upon the meadow, provided that the owners of the meadow would agree to such a transfer, and provided that the "association" would make a satisfactory proposition to Mr. Hughes as regards the use of the meadow by the Academy athletic teams.

Moreover, if there is a belief prevailing that the academy will make money out of such an enterprise at the expense of the general public and for such a reason the contests is not proving the success the Academy hoped for, then Mr. Hughes is willing to make the proposition that an athletic committee from the town be selected to co-operate with him in the conduct of the Academy athletics, that they may observe whether these athletics are managed properly and economically and whether there is a balance in the treasury at the end of the season after all necessary expenditures for equipments, repairs, leasing grounds, etc., have been paid; and to this end to have a bookkeeper to act under the supervision of the athletic association already suggested if the people generally and in making the new athletic field ready and DO IT NOW.

Can any proposition be fairer than this?

Ought you not to accept it, sport lovers?

Don't you owe something to yourselves and to the boys who are growing up in our community? And wouldn't a well equipped athletic field bring an abundance of pleasure and exercise to yourselves, the old as well as those who ought to be interested in this enterprise?

Don't you owe something to the Academy that has been a successful factor in the educational, moral and business life of Bellefonte for over a century? Don't you desire as a mere business proposition to have the Academy develop into a larger and even more successful institution than it is today? Don't you realize that every new boy attracted to the Academy means at least $500 more of business to the town and that this money is quite generally expended in the town? Don't you realize that there is hardly any phase of the business life of our town that is not affected directly or indirectly by the financial success of the academy?

Did you ever stop to think that there is an intense competition among boarding schools and academies today and that beautiful grounds, attractive buildings and good athletic facilities are strong arguments in favor of the schools which can boast of such advantages?

Boys as a rule seek schools with good athletic records. The Academy has attracted many strong fellows along athletic lines, and especially so this year, and it is up to all of us to provide the athletic facilities that will satisfy them and hold them in our academy until they are ready for college or business? It is up to us to do this for the selfish reason of financial advantage to the community if for no other reason. A school these days goes backward or forward. Fail to meet the needs of the hour as they develop, and you turn its course backward. There is great responsibility for each one of us in this matter. Let us wake up to this great need for the Academy and town and help to hustle the contest. If you don't want to buy votes, send a good sized contribution to the enterprise and let us give notice of it along with the votes.

A most amicable and satisfactory arrangement for the use of the new field by the town organizations can be made with Mr. Hughes, if he assumes the entire responsibility. We trust that those even who have no interest in the athletic phase of the question will see that in helping this enterprise they are helping to bring business to the town from which they all reap a share directly or indirectly. Mr. Hughes will welcome an interview with a committee representing the athletic interests of the town. Act promptly and let the money be raised at once so that by April 1st contracts can be let and the improvements begun.

PERUNA EDITORIAL NO. 2.

Dr. Hartman has claimed for many years that Peruna is an EXCELLENT CATARRH REMEDY. Some of the doctor's critics have disputed the doctor's claim as to the efficacy of Peruna.

Since the ingredients of Peruna are no longer a secret, what do the medical authorities say concerning the remedies of which Peruna is composed?

Take, for instance, the ingredient HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS, OR GOLDEN SEAL. The United States Dispensatory says of this herbal remedy, that it is largely employed in the treatment of depraved mucous membranes, chronic rhinitis (nasal catarrh), atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), chronic intestinal catarrh, catarrhal jaundice (catarrh of the liver), and in diseased mucous membranes of the pelvic organs. It is also recommended for the treatment of various forms of diseases peculiar to women.

Another ingredient of Peruna, CORYDALIS FORMOSA, is classed in the United States Dispensatory as a tonic.

CEDRON SEEDS is another ingredient of Peruna, an excellent drug that has been very largely overlooked by the medical profession for the past fifty years. THE SEEDS ARE TO BE FOUND IN VERY FEW DRUG STORES. The United States Dispensatory says of the action of cedron that it is used as a bitter tonic and in the treatment of dysentery, and in intermittent diseases as a SUBSTITUTE FOR QUININE.

OIL OF COPAIBA, another ingredient of Peruna, is classed by the United States Dispensatory as a mild stimulant and diuretic. It acts on the stomach and intestinal tract. It acts as a stimulant on the genito-urinary membranes. Useful in chronic cystitis, chronic dysentery and diarrhea, and some chronic diseases of the liver and kidneys.

Our Peruna Tablet Is Peruna With Fluid Removed.

These opinions as to the ingredients of Peruna are held by all writers on the subject, including Bartholow and Scudder.

OF HYDRASTIS, BARTHOLOW SAYS it is applicable to stomatitis (catarrh of the mucous surfaces of the mouth), follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), chronic coryza (catarrh of the head). This writer classes hydrastis as a stomachic tonic, useful in atonic dyspepsia (chronic gastric catarrh), catarrh of the duodenum, catarrh of the gall duct, catarrh of the intestines, catarrh of the kidneys (chronic Bright's disease), catarrh of the bladder, and catarrh of other pelvic organs.

BARTHOLOW REGARDS COPAIBA as an excellent remedy for chronic catarrh of the bladder, chronic bronchitis (catarrh of the bronchial tubes).

BARTHOLOW STATES THAT CUBEB, an ingredient of Peruna, promotes the appetite and digestion, increases the circulation of the blood. Useful in chronic nasal catarrh, follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), increasing the tonicity of the mucous membranes of the throat. It also relieves hoarseness. Useful in atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), and in chronic catarrh of the colon and rectum, catarrh of the bladder, prostatorrhea, and chronic bronchial affections.

MILLSPAUGH, MEDICINAL PLANTS, one of the most authoritative works on medicinal herbs in the English language, in commenting upon COLLINSONIA CANADENSIS, says that it acts on the pneumogastric and vaso motor nerves. It increases the secretions of the mucous membranes in general. In the mountains of Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Carolina, collinsonia canadensis is considered a panacea for many disorders, including headache, colic, cramp, dropsy and indigestion. DR. SCUDDER regards it highly as a remedy in chronic diseases of the lungs, heart disease and asthma.

These citations ought to be sufficient to show to any candid mind that Peruna is a catarrh remedy. Surely, such herbal remedies, that command the enthusiastic confidence of the highest authorities obtainable, brought together in proper combination, ought to make a catarrh remedy of the highest efficacy.

This is our claim, and we are able to substantiate this claim by ample quotations from the HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

The Four D's.

Chas. H. Spurgeon once said that there were three great enemies to man—"dirt, debt and the devil." He might have added one more and included dyspepsia. The evil results of this disease could hardly be exaggerated. It's effects are felt in mind and body, and are as far reaching as the effects of the curse that was laid on the Jackdaw of Rheims which was cursed in "eating and drinking and sleeping, in standing and sitting and lying." The good effects of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery are most marked in aggravated and chronic cases of dyspepsia. It enables the stomach glands to secret the necessary quanity of digestive fluids, and this at once removes that craving or gnawing sensation so common to certain forms of indigestion. It tones and regulates the stomach, invigorates the torpid liver and gives the blood making glands keen assimilative power. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures nine-eighths per cent, of those who use it. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are superior to all other laxative medicine when the bowels are obstructed.

Headache

Can be cured only by a remedy that will remove the cause.

The oftener you stop it with headache powders or pills the quicker will it return.

Generally, headache comes from a disturbed stomach or irregular bowels, and almost invariably

Lane's Family Medicine

(a tonic laxative) will cure headache in short order by regulating the bowels and reinvigorating the stomach.

It is a great blood medicine and the favorite laxative of old and young.

CORRESPONDENCE

All correspondents must be in this office not later than Tuesday evening. And ocal matter must be written only on one side of the paper. Correspondents will kindl notice these requests.

Howard.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Williams returned Wednesday from a visit at Centre Hall.

Wm. Lohr was a visitor in Lemont Thursday last.

Robert Confer and John Holmes transacted business in Bellefonte last Thursday.

J. B. Mayes of Lemont was a visitor at the home of his son J. Will last week.

Miss Betsey Hall of Unionville visited among relatives for a week.

Wm. Weber, Chester Moore, Mr. Jordon, Clyde Long and Ammon Schenck attended a play in Bellefonte last Friday night.

Charles Holter of Bellefonte visited his father M. P. Holter over Sunday.

A sled load of the members of the Christian church drove to Blanchard last Thursday night where they attended the special services in progress in the Christian church there.

Mrs. A. L. Holter is seriously ill at present. She was stricken with paralysis last week and her recovery has been very slow.

Charles Strunk had a very narrow escape from an accidental death Sunday. He had been looking after the fires at the Bower and Leathers handle factory and when he came out passed under a lumber shed at the end of the building. He was not more than half dozen steps out of the shed when the snow laden roof came crashing down at his heels. Had he been but a few seconds later he would have been crushed to death.

The members of the High school are making preparations for the annual class reception Friday evening.

A short time ago the writer heard several parties speaking about the double doors at the entrance to the school house. As it is the doors open in and one of the persons referred to argued that the doors should swing out, so that in case of fire a stampede of the children would not block the doors and prevent the exit of the pupils. Since the fire at Collinwood the matter has been discussed by the school board. At the last meeting there was also a lengthy discussion about putting up a fire escape at the back hall on the second floor. The board adjourned with deciding on either of these changes. While the school building is small compared to the city buildings there is a possibility of fire and the children being caught in the front door trap.

Rev. E. M. Aller will close his conference year on Sunday and will depart for the annual conference at York. It is hoped by many that he may be returned another year.

Miss Nellie Weber attended the play "Under Southern Skies" at Bellefonte last Friday evening.

William Wilhelm of Buffalo, who is interested in the Lauth estate adjoining the borough at the east end has asked the borough authorities to have the borough limits extended so as to take in a portion of the estate. If the borough is enlarged as Mr. Wilhelm has asked it will include the Howard Canning factory and the Howard Brick works as well as land available for building lots. The petition was held over pending investigation and time for deliberation on the part of the councilmen.

Row boats would have been serviceable on the sidewalks in town Saturday and Sunday. The gutters and sewers were frozen up and the rain and meltings now water filled the walks in many places with several inches of water. The country roads are almost impassible on account of the thaw.

The many friends of Mrs. Nancy Smith were grived to hear of her death which occurred at Williamsport Saturday. See notice elsewhere.

The members of the United Evangelical church are pleased that Rev. W. W. Rhoads has been returned to them for another year.

Mrs Charles McMurtrie visited her parents in Tyrone over Sunday.

Fiedler.

Those who bought horses at the horse sale on Saturday were Elmer Boob, Frank Stover, Jerry Martin and Cleve Musser.

The Lutherans had services in the St. Paul church for the last two weeks and closed last Friday evening.

Russel, the seven year old son of Chas. Haines fractured his thigh bone, while coasting with a small sled. The child was a short distance from the house and being unable to get up or call for help laid at a fence until found by W. J. Krape of Aaronsburg, who had been cutting timber near there.

Rev. A. G. Wolf and family of Annville, Pa., who had been a former Lutheran pastor at Aaronsburg, visited at the hospitable home of Dr. David Bowersox a few days last week.

Grace Bressler who had made her home with Elmer Burns for the last few months has again returned to her home at Aaronsburg.

Sam'l Mowery and family visited relatives in Brush Valley on Sunday last.

Ruth Hinds spent Sunday at Madisonburg.

Wm. G. Hosterman and family spent Sunday at Aaronsburg with Mrs. Hosterman's father, W. J. Krape.

The sale of Henry Zerby on Tuesday was largely attended and goods brought good prices.

The two daughters of H. L. Winkleblech, Edna and Ardrena are both on the sick list.

Snow Shoe.

H. B. Craft of Moshannon was a pleasant caller to our town on Tuesday, he has been on the sick list for the past few days.

John Hazel of Williamsport, transacted business in our town Thursday. Mr. Hazel is an expert cornet player.

Mrs. Deliah Etters and son James and his wife, left for Portland, Oregon, where they will make their future home. Andy Etters has quite a lumbering job in that place and James expects to work for him.

Miss Mary Hall has been quite sick the last few days. She has been working for Logan Kelly but owing to her illness she has been at home with her parents.

Alex. Soble, a Slav living near Clarence, died very suddenly on Wednesday morning. He was working at the mines and had just pushed his car up to the place where he was working. He got into his car and died a few minutes later. The cause of his death was asthma.

Last Tuesday night our little town was infested by thieves. They made their way into W. A. Sickle's drug store and relieved him of some of his small change and they were at J. H. Kelly & Co. store and helped themselves, and to mend the matter they carried the barber's chewing gum machine up along Main street and threw it down. They then disappeared in the dead hour of the night. The suspected parties don't live very far from town.

Mr. Roger Graham has been very sick the past few days, he has had something like pneumonia. We hope that he will be around again in a short time.

G. W. Hall of Bellefonte was a pleasant caller to our town on Saturday for the purpose of introducing some of Edison's records. Mr. Hall had some very nice selections and during his short stay in our town he made several sales. Thomas Dixon bought a $25.00 machine from Mr. Hall. Talking machines are getting quite numerous throughout our little town.

John Daily and wife have returned from Clearfield where they spent a few days honeymoon. We all wish them happiness and may they live long and prosper.

Mrs. Wm. Burns of Scotchtown has been very sick the past few days but we hope that she will soon be around.

Mr. Charles Zimmerman, better known as Bowser, has been sick for the past few days but is able to be around again selling his papers. He is agent for the Curtis Publishing Co. and sells the Saturday Evening Post.

Our old friend John Burns has returned to Snow Shoe where he will spend the balance of his days, as he says there is no place like S. S.

Miss Nellie Tobin, who is employed at Williamsport, is spending a few days with friends in this place.

Edward Sneller who has been employed at Altoona is home spending a few days with his parents.

Roland Borger and his father-in-law Mr. Frye were pleasant callers to our town Thursday.

Miss Mary Hayes has been quite sick the past few days with grip.

James Parks made a trip to Runville Saturday evening. There must be some attraction.

Moshannon.

Bruce and Claude Lomison, have gone to the vicinity of State College where they have secured employment.

Messrs Harry Beates and Harry Conaway, of Pine Glen, were pleasant patrons of the festival here on Saturday night.

Some of Snow Shoe's "favorite sons" attended the festival and were delightfully entertained by as many of our "buds of promise" among the female portion of the population.

Another snow fell on Sunday night, which renewed the good sleighing in this locality. A prolonged season of sledding has been the delight of our young folks who are always ready to take advantage of it.

The Festival on Saturday night was quite well attended and an enjoyable time spent by nearly all present. One novel feature of the programme was the leap year game in which the boys were treated, (like dogs) by the girls. Other amusements were delightfully carried out and all in all, the occasion was a pleasant one.

The following rhyme was produced by a teacher who has been very successful in keeping order by the use of a piece of bicycle tire:

A PSALM OF TEACHING.

Tell me not, in idle rumble,
Teaching children "is a cinch!"
For one child will fall or stumble,
And another gets a pinch.

Children bad, are not in earnest,
And the school-room's not their goal;
You can whip them till it burnest,
They will not obey a rule.

Nor for study, nor for learning,
Do they schoolward wend their way;
But to act, on each to-morrow
Ruder than they did today.

Weeks are long, but days are fleeting,
And the teachers, strong and brave,
Still, with rubber tires, are beating
Those that always misbehave.

In this truly great profession,
When in charge of any school,
Be not like these awful children!
Do your duty and keep cool!

Trust no pupil, howe'er clement!
Mary, Alice, Tom or Fred;
Act,—act at any moment!
Whip in hand, or fire instead!

Great instructors all remind us,
We can make our schools sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Better children for future time;

Children, that perhaps another,
Teacher of our girls and boys,
A forlorn, disheartened brother,
With a fire, can silence joys.

Let us, then, be always ready;
For the girls as well as boys;
Mary, Alice, Tom or Freddy,
Who are always making noise.

Milesburg

Josephine Taylor, of Altoona, after visiting her sister of this place, returned home.

Mrs. Mary Boileau Sundayed in Altoona with relatives.

Miss Margaret Riehel of Philadelphia, after visiting her cousin Miss Mary Adams, returned home.

Frank Miles of State College Sundayed in the burg with relatives and friends.

Ellis Harvey of Lock Haven Sundayed with friends in the burg.

Sensible Dog.

"Talking about the intelligence of animals," said young Kanebiter, "why, I have a dog up at the farm that's simply wonderful."

"How so?" said Pitken.

"Why, you see, I was out shooting one day when I found a large, handsome dog lying on the ground moaning with pain. Some ruffian had shot it in the leg. I carried it home, bandaged the wound and finally cured the poor beast. Some months after that I was compelled to travel a lonely road after dark when suddenly Ponto, who accompanied me, growled warningly. The next moment a highwayman stepped out of the bushes and put a pistol to my head."

"Ah," cried the listener, "I see! Thereupon the grateful dog seized the robber by the throat."

"Not at all. The man robbed me easily enough—took watch, purse, everything."

"But Ponto?"

"Ran off as fast as his legs would carry him. That's the point—don't you see? Animal instinct—didn't want to get shot again." — Illustrated London News.

The Ferret and the Rat.

A correspondent of a London paper, commenting on the crusade against rats in Great Britain, says: "The real remedy against rats is the ferret, not the unhealthy ferret kept by the half starved rat catcher of the agricultural village, but the strong, healthy ferret bred on the ground floor of a well ventilated, commodious dog kennel and there kept on skimmilk, table refuse and small birds. Bedded with clean wheat straw, the ferret is one of the sweetest of animals, and the expert goes into the kennels and cheers them as though in a kennel of hounds, and they crawl about him harmlessly. The young bucks will run miles across the country with the expert, just like little terriers. With this healthy life they grow too big for hunting rats in barns or other buildings, but they can settle any rat in a wheat stack if put in before the rat has made a labyrinth inside the stack. The doe ferrets will rout the buildings, and they alone should be the chief instrument in the crusade. The rat is too cunning for guns, traps and other devices."

The Hundred Best Books.

"The fact is that there is no possibility of naming the hundred best books. The naming of them for any large general audience is quite impossible. All that is possible in such a connection is to state emphatically that there are very few books that are equally suitable to every kind of intellect," says Clement Shorter in his book of "Immorial Memories." "Temperament as well as intellectual endowment makes for so much in reading. Take, for example, the 'Imitation of Christ.' George Eliot, although not a Christian, found it soul satisfying. Thackeray, as I think a more robust intellect, found it well nigh as mischievous as did Eugene Sue. There are great books that can be read only by the few, but surely the very greatest appeal alike to the man of rich intellectual endowment and to the man to whom all processes of reasoning are incomprehensible."

An Irish Tale.

One day an Irishman, having put his hat upon a gate post by which he lay down to sleep, sprang up at midnight and, mistaking the object for an enemy, dealt it a desperate cut with his scythe. Perceiving his mistake, the man gave thanks to heaven that he had taken it off before lying down. "For," said he, "had my head been in that hat, 'tis ten to one I had laid it open with my scythe, and 'tis a dead man I would have been seein' mesilf at this minute!"—London Captain.

Not Far to Go.

The reporter hurried up to the scene of the accident. A workman engaged on some scaffolding had missed his footing and had fallen many feet into the street below. Then the reporter went off to interview the unfortunate man, who luckily had escaped with a very severe shaking and a few nasty bruises, and asked sympathetically:

"Did you have vertigo, my man?"

"Oh, no, sir; only about thirty-five feet. Quite far enough for me, though."—Pearson's.

Woman's World

MRS. SARAH P. DECKER.

Busy President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker, the president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, is a rare story teller, and the situation is well portrayed in the following incident, which she tells herself: Her name had been attached to a petition to the city council of Denver, but she had failed to indicate her occupation. Upon this point a man was sent to her home to inquire.

"What is your occupation, madam?" he asked.

"I am a housekeeper, sir," she replied.

"Well, that doesn't count," said the man promptly.

"Well, I am both father and mother to my family," she announced.

"That doesn't count neither," he replied firmly.

"Well, I transact all my own business," she said briskly. "I collect my own rents and manage all my own affairs." Mrs. Decker has a private fortune that it would keep the ordinary man busy to take care of.

MRS. SARAH PLATT DECKER TELLING A STORY TO HER FRIENDS.

"Have you got an office downtown?" inquired the man.

"No," she said. "I transact all my business from my desk here in my home."

"Ah, that doesn't count neither," the man replied obdurately.

"Well, sir," said Mrs. Decker at last, "I am president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, an organization of over 800,000 women, and I attend to all my own correspondence," confident this time that she had provided something worthy the name of occupation. But that man just took out his memorandum book and said, "Well, I'll just put you down as not doin' anything."

English Trunks.

When the smart girl of today goes out of town for Saturday and Sunday it is not in a suit case that her things are packed. Quite superseding this familiar piece of luggage are small trunks —"boxes," as our English cousins call them—and with reason the same term may be adopted here when speaking of these, for distinctly English is the trunk.

To persons who are much on the other side of the ocean the box is as well known as are suit cases here.

Only recently, however, have they been on sale in this country, but so manifestly and many are their advantages as to bring instant popularity. Such a "box" holds twice if not three times as much as a suit case and is easily carried by a porter. It can be put on top of a hansom or on the box of a cab, and the owner has her luggage with her from the time she leaves home until she returns. There is no checking unless one wishes, for the porter of a drawing room car can stow away the luggage in a corner and put it off at the station for which its owner is destined.

The boxes are about two or two and a half feet deep and two feet the other dimensions. They are built in every way like a trunk and have sufficient depth to hold a big hat, wherein the advantage is great over a suit case. They are covered with black waterproofing, suggestive of patent leather, and the edges are bound in raw, natural colored leather. The straps and lock covering correspond.

On the top is a stout leather handle, and it is by this the box is carried.

Even when packed the luggage is light, for the trunk is made of fiber that weighs scarcely more than paper. At the same time it is durable, so should the box be turned over to the tender mercies of an expressman it will survive the ordeal without more than surface damage.

Within is a tray for small articles or to hold dinner and evening gowns should a big hat go in the bottom. In the latter case small articles are put with the hat.

Aid In Making Guests Feel at Home.

Often the daughter of the house, especially if spare rooms be few or guest many, shares her bedchamber with her girl visitor, knowing it will only add to the pleasure of the visit, for heart to heart talks can be prolonged indefinitely, toilet magic interchanged, as well as mutual help in that most despairing of modern evils, the blouse or gown fastened up the back. All this is a pleasure, not a hardship, to guest as well as hostess, but there is one great drawback. The dressing table and bureau are apt to be already overcrowded with the many dainty toilet accessories of the regular occupant of the room, and the addition of those of the modern visitor, whose belongings are sure to be almost if not quite as numerous, add confusion and dismay.

One clever girl prepared for this by using an extra table, which, when she occupies the room alone, stands at one side, but when a fair guest is expected is brought forward to a good light, daintily covered and a small antique mirror placed upon it. A chair is arranged before it, and the thought that it was put there for her own especial use adds to the pleasure of the visitor when she spies it; also it adds materially in dissipating that feeling of awkwardness that she would be apt to experience when unpacking her own belongings and being forced to crowd aside those of the owner.

Novel Tapestry Square.

Tourists on their return from some enchanting holiday trip abroad cannot fail to eagerly invest in a few of the novel tapestry squares on the canvas of which are depicted with the needle facsimiles of favorite paintings, statues, churches, monuments, sea and landscapes, besides many picturesque views, notably those displaying the beauties of Switzerland, the Rhine and Holland. The subject itself is usually ready worked with either the patient and minute tent stitch, the coarser and quicker cross stitch or both combined, while the background is crossed with close lines of double strands of silk or cotton to be overcast by the worker, with merely the half of a cross stitch always kept turned in the same direction. Sometimes, too, a sweet or severe miniature-like face animates a band of canvas covered with trails of flowers. Tufts of delicate blossoms, Louis XVI. stripes, gay birds and Watteau or Dresden groups look equally effective reproduced in this way in single thread canvas. These designs are intended to adorn cushions, blotters, portfolios, small cabinets, table screens, waste paper baskets and the like.

A Cooking Hint.

"Why is your dried fruit so much better than other people's?" a regular old time housekeeper was asked the other day. "It never is gritty, as so often happens, and it has a rich flavor instead of a watery taste."

"I scrub my fruit through half a dozen different waters to get off the rough outer skin, using a long handled brush, the kind that is sold for nailbrushes," was the reply.

"The fruit is then put to soak overnight and is cooked in the same water in which it is soaked, as in this way much of the flavor is retained.

"I let it cook slowly on the back of the stove for several hours and add the sugar about five minutes before they are done."

In winter, when fresh fruit and vegetables are out of the question in most homes, it is a great thing to know how to prepare the various dried fruits so they are palatable, as they make a pleasant and healthful dish for lunch or supper.

Using Court Plaster.

In mending articles with court plaster never apply while the latter is wet. Wait a few seconds until it gets sticky; then there is no danger of moisture penetrating the goods to make a soiled place on the right side, as many have experienced while mending in this manner. Turn the right side toward you, lay on it a clean cloth and iron perfectly smooth. If any frayed pieces are noticeable, clip these with a pair of scissors. Mending tissue can be basted into place, as the basting threads are easily drawn out. To take out a hem put in with gum tissue it is only necessary to run a warm iron over the goods, and the material is easily pulled apart.

Appreciation In the Home.

"As far as my observation goes, there is one fault by no means common to men alone, I am sorry to say. That is the fault of taking things for granted in the home life," says a writer in Good Housekeeping. "There is lack of appreciation for the little things being done for one's happiness or comfort. I believe we all need to be more careful to show and express our appreciation in our daily lives for the many kindnesses which are shown us and thereby radiate a circle of domestic happiness."

Roquefort Rabbit.

Take about one-eighth of a pound of Roquefort cheese and mash with a silver fork on a plate until soft and creamy. Add a half teaspoonful of salt and mustard and a tablespoonful of soft butter. Add ale enough to blend in a creamy mass, spread on toast or wafers and serve at once.

For the woman who does her own laundry work great saving of time and strength may be found in the use of the small five cent vegetable brushes. They are just the thing to rub soiled neckbands, wrists and all badly soiled garments.

A tiny sore at the corner of the lips should be at once well powdered with boracic acid powder and kept covered with it till it disappears.

Wash articles of brass which are tarnished in the water in which potatoes have been boiled and they will be as bright as if new.

The Family Physician

THEIR WISHES GRANTED.

Story of Three Indian Brothers Who Became Trees.

There were once three brothers who went to see the lord of life and win their hearts' desires. One, though tall enough, wished to be taller still. He had tried in many ways to make himself taller, because he wished to be admired and looked up to by smaller people and win the love of the beautiful Indians of his tribe. To make himself look taller than he really was he put soft clay into his moccasins to raise him on his feet, and he plastered up his hair to stand high, and on top of it was a long turkey tail. But what he wished for was to be taller still. The second brother asked that he might live always, where he might behold all the beauty of the land and rest in peace forever; the third brother asked to live to a great age and always to be healthy till he died.

Now, when the lord of life heard what they desired he summoned his servant, the earthquake, and commanded him to set them firmly with their feet fast planted in the ground, and when this was done the three brothers were turned to pine trees. The lord of life paid heed to their wishes, for he gave them what they most desired.

He who would be tall overtopped all the trees in the forest; even the turkey tail was not forgotten. It waves to this hour, and on summer days the giant tree sways and murmurs with pride.

The second brother, who wished to dwell in peace upon the earth, will do so while he is rooted to the ground, and the third, who wished to live to the end in perfect health, is still standing straight and sturdy in the forest.—Washington Star.

ELLS OF CLOTH.

A Lively and Interesting Game For Boys.

This amusing game is called "ells of cloth" and may be played by any number of boys, all of whom, excepting two, stand in a row, holding hands and stretching as widely apart as their arms will permit. The two not in the row are called the "merchant" and the "weaver," and the boys in the row represent ells of cloth. They stand as just described. The cloth is supposed to be unfolded. The merchant goes down the line, looking at each boy as if examining the cloth before purchasing. Having measured the cloth by taking each "ell" by the hands, he turns away and goes away as if to get his money. Then each boy clasps the one next to him around the waist, and they all stand close together, with the weaver at the head of the line held around the waist by the first "ell."

When the merchant comes back, he is told that the cloth is now folded, and he must unfold it if he wishes to complete his purchase. He takes the weaver by the hands and by pulling him about tries to make some of the "ells" let go. Any one that does let go must stand aside until only one remains besides the weaver, and this one may be either the merchant or the weaver in the next game, as he pleases. The game is a pretty lively one and full of fun.

Conundrums.

Why is a newborn baby like a donkey's tail? Because it was never seen before.

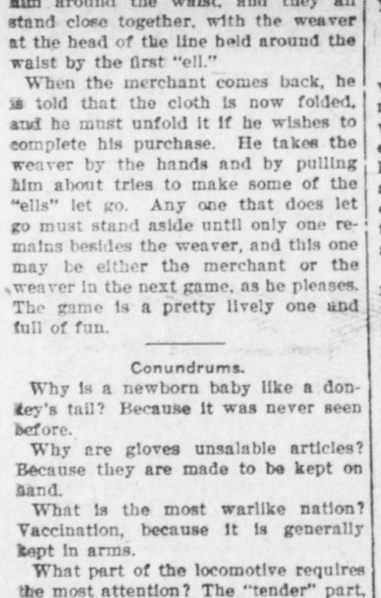
Why are gloves unsalable articles? Because they are made to be kept on hand.

What is the most warlike nation? Vaccination, because it is generally kept in arms.

What part of the locomotive requires the most attention? The "tender" part, of course.

Song of the Pirate.

A pirate, a pirate, a pirate I will be!
In stormy ways
I'll spend my days—
A pirate's life for me!
Upon the main
I'll look for gain.
I'll sail the broad seas o'er.
I'll store my hold with gold, and then
I'll make the people tremble when
They see me come ashore!



A pirate, a pirate, a pirate bold am I!
Where people shriek
On decks that reek
I'll swing my cutlass high!
I'll swiftly sail
Before the gale.
I'll sweep the stormy sea.
And when the day's dark work is done
I'll reef my sails and meekly run
To kneel at mother's knee.

Odd Use For Bread.

Perhaps the most novel use to which bread is put may be seen in one of our great watch factories, where more than forty loaves of fresh bread are required each day. An official of the watch factory is quoted as saying

"There is no secret regarding the use of bread in this factory, and I am willing to tell all I can concerning it. From the earliest times in the history of watchmaking it has been the custom of watchmakers to reduce fresh bread to the form of dough. This is done by steaming and kneading. They then use this dough for removing oil and chips that naturally adhere in course of manufacture to pieces as small as a part of a watch. There are many parts of a watch, by the way, that are so small as to be barely visible to the naked eye. The oil is absorbed by this dough and the chips stick to it, and there is no other known substance which can be used as a wiper without leaving some of its particles attached to the thing wiped. This accounts for the continued use of bread dough in the watchmaking industry."—American Food Journal.

A Quaint Compliment.

On Mark Twain's seventy-second birthday a Hartford clergyman said of him:

"No wonder he finds happiness in old age. All the aged would be happy if they were as sympathetic and as kind as he. He is continually going out of his way to please others, and the result is that he is continually pleasing himself. Listen, for instance, to the quaint compliment he paid me the last time he came to hear me preach. He waited for me at the church door at the service's end and, shaking me by the hand, said gravely:

"'I mean no offense, but I feel obliged to tell you that the preaching this morning has been of a kind that I can spare. I go to church, sir, to pursue my own train of thought, but today I couldn't do it. You interfered with me. You forced me to attend to you and lost me a full half hour. I beg that this may not occur again.'"

Philosophy of Descartes.

Turning the mental vision inward, as Bacon turned it outward, Descartes watched the operations of the soul as an object in a microscope. Resolved to believe nothing but upon evidence so convincing that he could not by any effort refuse his ascent, he found as he inspected his beliefs that he could plausibly doubt everything but his own existence. Here at last was the everlasting rock, and this was revealed in his own consciousness; hence his famous "Cogito ergo sum" (I think, therefore I am). Consciousness, said he, is the basis of certitude. Interrogate it and its clear replies will be science, for all clear ideas are true. Down in the depths of the mind is the idea of the infinite perfection—the mark of the workman impressed upon his work. Therefore God exists.—New York American.

Science and Sound Fact.

"The workings of the human mind when asleep are full of wonder," remarked a scientist who was paying a visit to an acquaintance. "Have you ever started up from a sound dreamless sleep, with every sense on the alert and with your whole being thrilled with a vivid yet indefinable feeling that something was wrong and instant action required?"

"Often," replied his hostess, "and in nearly every case I have found that I was awakened by the fumbling of my husband's key at the front door!"

Impertinent.

Speaking of a man noted for his impertinence, an acquaintance said:

"Blank's impudence was second only to that of a waiter I heard about the other day.

"'Look here, waiter,' said a guest, 'this fish is not cooked properly.'

"'I know it, sir,' said the waiter, 'but you told me it was for your wife.'

"'Well, what of that?' asked the surprised guest.

"'Why,' said the waiter, 'I knew that if the lady was your wife she couldn't be very particular.'"

Realism In Art.

Two artists were boasting how they could paint. "Do you know," said one, "I painted a sixpence on the ground one day, and a beggar nearly broke his fingers trying to pick it up!" "That's nothing to what I did," said the other. "I painted a leg of mutton on a stone, and it was so realistic that a dog ate half the stone before he found out his mistake!"

His Narrow Escape.

"I tell you, the closing of the Steenth National was a mighty close call for me."

"How was that?"

"Why, a friend had advised me to put my money in it and"—

"And you took his advice?"

"No, but I would if I'd had any money."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Tailor and the College Humorist.

Perennial victims of the humorous paper at Yale are the familiar campus characters, Jim Donnelly, the policeman; Pop Warner, the "teeming expressman," so called because he delivers his goods in an automobile, and Rosenberg Sons, the suit pressers, about whom, in a Pegasian flight of distress at the time of the junior prom., the Record uttered these winged words:

Oh, Rosenberg, dear Rosenberg,
Thy sons we'll ne'er forget.
That suit of clothes,
God only knows,
I'm waiting for them yet.

I'll miss that train. I'll go insane
And rip and tear and cuss.
Just out of reach
There goes that peach
I've missed my chance to fuss.

With this same suit presser as hero, the story is told on a popular professor that in leading chapel one morning he stopped short, leaned over and whispered excitedly to the choir, "What's the name of that song, 'Press On, Christian Soldier, Press On?'" "Rosenberg!" came from a dozen men at once. "We'll sing three stanzas of Rosenberg!" said the leader, with ecclesiastical assurance.—E. R. Embree in Bohemian.

Dread of Marble Portraits.

"One peculiarity of human nature that I am reminded of daily," said a sculptor, "is the disinclination of the average man to look upon himself reproduced in marble. The sight strikes him with positive dread. It makes him feel as if he were looking on his own lifeless body. For that reason it is difficult to persuade many persons worth modeling to sit for a sculptor. Frequently I am asked why most of my work is modeled after dead and gone subjects. The answer is that living people refuse to give me a commission. The art of the sculptor differs there from that of the painter. Everybody likes to be painted. The sight of one's face, one's figure, one's clothes, in a picture evokes nothing but pleasurable emotions if well done, but to see oneself carved out of marble produces such an overpowering sense of death that many sensitive persons put off immortalization at the hands of a sculptor until they are really dead."—New York Press.

His Brothers.

At the usual monthly petty sessions court held in a certain provincial town some weeks ago the following incident occurred:

One of the local police constables had summoned a neighboring farmer on a charge of "having a number of asses wandering at will on the public road." The defendant failed to appear, but his brother was present in the person of the clerk of petty sessions, who on hearing the sentence of the presiding magistrate, "Fined 2s. 2d. and costs," rose to the occasion by replying: "They're my brother's, your worship. I'll pay the fine."

He was shocked when his becoming exhibition of fraternal love for the asses was rewarded with an outburst of laughter.—London Graphic.

The Frank Critic.

"When Sir John Millais was engaged in painting his 'Chill October' among the rushes on the banks of the Tay, near Perth," said an English artist, "a railway porter from the station at Kinfauns used to carry the canvas back and forth for him.

"The porter was a quaint chap. His services were called for many days in requisition. He became quite friendly with Sir John and seemed to take a hearty interest in the progress of the painting.

"Well, 'Chill October' was eventually finished and sold a little while afterward for a thousand pounds. This fact somehow reached the porter's ears. He met Sir John's brother-in-law at Kinfauns one day and said excitedly:

"'Mon, is't true that Sir John's sold t'picture and got a thoosand poond for't?'

"'Yes, certainly,' was the reply.

"'A thoosand poond!' repeated the porter. 'Why, mon, I wadna gi'en half a croon for't.'"

A Woman's Face.

No words can express the almost divine love and tenderness and the perfect trust and happiness of that girl wife's face as she looked into the eyes of her husband—and smiled. Other holiday impressions may grow dim and fade away, but that sweet woman's face remains stamped on my memory forever.—Wynne in London Reader.

"I'm afraid you have, my dear."

Its gentle laxative effects especially recommended it for children. It is pleasant to take. For coughs, colds, hoarseness whooping-cough. Money refunded if not satisfied. Sold by Krumrines.

How Cough Germs Multiply

When you have a cold the mucous membrane is inflamed and the disease germs which you breathe find lodgement and multiply, especially the pneumania germ. Foley's Honey and Tar soothes and heals the inflamed air passage, stops the cough and expels the cold from your system. Refuse substitutes, C. M. Parrish.

STRONG Again

is what Mrs. Lucy Stovall, of Tilton, Ga., said after taking Kodol for Dyspepsia. Hundreds of other weak women are being restored to perfect health by this remedy. YOU may be well if you will take it.

Indigestion causes nearly all the sickness that women have. It deprives the system of nourishment and the delicate organs peculiar to women suffer — weaken, and become diseased.

Kodol
For Dyspepsia

enables the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all of the wholesome food that may be eaten. It nourishes the body, and rebuilds the weak organs, restoring health and strength. Kodol relieves indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, sour risings, belching, heartburn and all stomach disorders.

Digests What You Eat

Relieves indigestion, sour stomach, belching of gas, etc.

PLEADS FOR HIS CLIENTS

Attorney L. D. Gilbert's Plea Occupies Two Whole Days

TRIES TO CLEAR SNYDER

Eminent Attorneys Declared the Case to be one of Stander, Scandal and Libel

PENNYPACKER IS A WISE MAN

Harrisburg, March 7,—The line was clearly drawn between former Auditor General Snyder and former Treasurer Mathues and Contractor Sanderson and former Superintendent of Buildings Shumaker Friday in Attorney Lyman L. Gilbert's continued argument in behalf of Snyder and Mathues in the alleged capitol grafting trial. He devoted himself exclusively to clearing his immediate clients without reference to the other defendants. The utter lack of concealment, he argued, was the best proof that Snyder and Mathues could not have been in collusion with Sanderson and Shumaker to defraud the state.

Gilbert reviewed the evidence showing that Snyder had suggested the "quantities book" which he said was devised as a means of properly recording Sanderson's contract performances. It was a ready reference book Architect Huston was obliged to keep, he said, so that Snyder could ascertain whether the "trimmings" were being delivered according to specifications. Had Snyder been a party to a conspiracy, Gilbert argued, he never would have suggested such a book. Gilbert laid great stress on the fact that the legislature of 1905 had sessions in the new capitol. Had the senators and representatives had any suspicion the state was being defrauded, he declared it was their duty to inform state officials.

Gilbert denied the election of Treasurer Berry had anything to do with Snyder's informing Governer Pennypacker in December, 1905, that the expenses for furniture were exceeding Huston's estimate of $800,000. He also insisted there was "no Berry" in the resolution adopted by the board of public grounds and buildings in January, 1905, approving Huston's revised plans for furniture. Gilbert's argument, which began yesterday, has extolled the virtue and wisdom of former Governor Pennypacker, banished Stanford B. Lewis to the Ananias club and impugned the honesty of Huston, the half-million dollar architect. He asserted that unless Lewis repented he would find himself "in full company with Ananias, Saphira, Titus, Oates and the other famous oath-makers of the past." Huston, he contended, was convicted out of his own handbook of unprofessional conduct, inattention and gross carelessness. "If he did not superintend the work he was paid to do he is a thief," asserted the lawyer at one point, while in another he declared that the architect was the real conspirator, if one accepted the lights of the commonwealth.

Assist Your Home Merchants.

The Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin in a very timely article makes some suggestions that are as applicable to Bellefonte as they apply to Williamsport:

There are some members of this community who delight to make their purchases away from home. Their favorite method is to patronize the mail order or catalogue house.

If you send your money from home does it not occur to you that you are not helping to build up your own community, or make it pay your home store keeper to stay in business where you live, and where he helps to pay the taxes, but that you are building up some other concern in a distant city that has no interest in you or your property?

Remember that your home merchant accomodates you often by delivering goods at your door, by extending credit to you when cash is not at hand, he helps to support the schools, churches and other public institutions, including helpless and unfortunate ones in your locality, he is your neighbor, working shoulder to you, and helps to increase the value of your real estate, or aids in the prosperity of those who employ you, by making your community more active and vigorous.

To the Party Concerned.

On Monday during the noon hour a sneak thief entered this office and carried off a pocket book conaining a dollar bill and other change. Again, Monday an employe's gloves were stolen from the office. The party is known and is advised that unless the articles are returned immediately the party will be prosecuted.

WALKING BANKS.

All Mexicans Carry Large Sums of Money on Their Persons.

A bank to the Mexican is not to be thought of for the handling of small amounts. Almost any Mexican in professional or business life carries on his person anywhere between $200 and $800. Even the poor Indian in his blanket can more than likely produce more than many foreigners.

The ordinary foreigner in Mexico, whether tourist or business man located here, carries perhaps $50 to $100 with him and no more. If a tourist, the foreigner will deposit any money over that amount he happens to have with him in the safe of the hotel at which he is registered; if a business man, he will carry no more than that amount on his person and will give a check for anything over that amount. The Spaniard resident in Mexico is inclined to carry much larger sums than any other foreigner here, and he will often carry sums of money aggregating nearly $1,000.

The ordinary Mexican professional man will be found to carry sums of money on his person that would surprise the ordinary traveler and even cause him worry were he forced to carry it with him, yet the Mexican never even thinks of it.

It was but a few days ago that an instance of this kind was brought to attention. One Mexican of the middle class asked another in a casual way if he could change a thousand dollar bill. The other pulled out a wallet from his inside pocket and counted out nearly $2,000. Time after time this has happened, and it seems no uncommon thing for a Mexican of the middle class to carry between one and two thousand pesos on his person.

One Mexican, who was being reproved for this apparent carelessness and imprudence, replied:

"We do not have any of your American holdups and highwaymen in Mexico. I have known my friends to have their pockets picked for large amounts through their own carelessness as to where they carried their money, but I have never heard of any one being hit over the head with a blackjack and his pockets rifled of their contents. That thing is unknown in Mexico, and so we have no fear in carrying these amounts."

The check idea seems to have taken but small hold as yet upon the citizens of Mexico, especially when small amounts of less than $1,000 are concerned. They consider it much easier to pay spot cash than to give a check for amounts of $50 and $100, and they claim, with some amount of reason, that a business deal can be put through with better advantage to themselves when the cash is in sight.

Even the Indians in the street carry amounts of cash that would never be supposed to be in their possession. They carry their money in leather belts fastened around their bodies inside their trousers. These belts are hollow and are open at one end. Into the open end the Indian slips his pesos or bills until he has the whole full. The belt then is either taken off and hidden away or the bills are changed for larger denominations and still carried around the body. But the Indian is a stickler for "pesos duros" and prefers them to any other class of money except gold.—Mexican Herald.

Too Much at Stake.

The question for discussion before the debating society that had met in the little schoolhouse belonging to district No. 13 was this: "Resolved, That the works published under the name of William Shakespeare were really written by Lord Bacon."

The debate was fierce and prolonged, but, as frequently happens in such cases, the disputants on one side had informed themselves thoroughly, while the others, relying upon their having the popular side of the controversy, depended solely on their oratory; hence the Baconians, having learned all that could be said in favor of their contention, made really a very plausible case and had decidedly much the better of the argument. At the close of the discussion the three judges who had been selected held a brief consultation and decided in favor of the negative.

"Why did you decide against us?" subsequently asked one of the disputants. "You know we presented good arguments, while the other fellows didn't show any."

"That's all right," answered the judge to whom this question was addressed, "but two of us had just bought expensive copies of 'The Works of William Shakespeare' that cost us $15. Do you suppose we were going to acknowledge that Shakespeare didn't write 'em?"—Youth's Companion.

Externally.

The Doctor—You understand, don't you, that this is only to be used externally? The Patient's Wife—Sure, sir, I allus makes him get out o' bed to drink it!—London Scraps.

Ware Your Friend's Plants.

"If you have a friend going away for the summer," said the woman of experience, "don't keep a plant for her. The thing will probably die away, and you would consider yourself responsible. I worried through six weeks one summer tending a plant for a friend and then was invited to the country for a week end. I stayed two days in addition. Of course the plant was dead when I came back, and my outing was half spoiled by worrying over it. I bought a duplicate of it the day before my friend returned, and it cost me $2. Even then she said she thought it looked somewhat peaked."—Exchange.

Vengeance by Prayer.

This bit of local color is from the Japan Times: "At Shinokubo, a small village in Soshu, consisting of only seventy houses, several cases of robbery have lately occurred, to the great alarm of the villagers. A diligent search instituted by them for the offender proved an utter failure. The community consequently held a mass meeting and unanimously agreed upon cursing the robber to death. A virtuous priest of the locality was accordingly applied to for the purpose.

"He, however, declined to curse the robber to death, an act too cruel for a holy man like him to resort to, but promised that he would paralyze the robber by his powerful prayers, so as to disable him and lead him to repentance. Thus the priest commenced his incantations. But, behold, the robber continued his subtle operations, to the indignation of the entire community.

"The priest has been condemned as a worthless fellow, and the villagers have taken upon themselves the task of repairing every day to the village temple by twos and threes to offer horrible prayers by which the robber is doomed to an early and fearful death."

In a Nitroglycerin "Hill"

In the "danger area" the severest discipline is maintained. All entrances are carefully guarded by searchers, who rigorously examine every individual that desires to enter, relieving him of any metallic objects that may be carried upon his person, together with matches and other suspicious objects which upon coming into contact with the dangerous chemicals used in this zone might provoke serious trouble. No matter how often an employee engaged within the hill may pass in and out, every time he enters he must submit to this preliminary and essential operation. There are also some 500 girls employed, and these are under the charge of matrons. Hairpins, ordinary pins, shoe buttons, metal pegs within the soles of the shoes, knitting and other needles are all religiously barred. Their hair is tied with braid or ribbon, and, as with the male employees, every time they enter the "danger area" they are similarly searched by the matrons. — Scientific American.

A Hard Knock.

Railroad claim agents have little faith in their fellow creatures. One said recently: "Every time I settle a claim with one of these hard headed rural residents who wants the railroad to pay twice what he would charge the butcher if he gets a sheep killed, I think of this story, illustrative of the way some people want to hold the railroad responsible for every accident, of whatever kind, that happens. Two Irishmen were driving home from town one night when their buggy ran into a ditch, overturned, and they were both stunned. When a rescuer came along and revived them the first thing one of them said was, 'Where's the train?' 'Why, there's no train around,' he was told. 'Then where's the railroad?' 'The nearest railroad is three miles away,' he learned. 'Well, well,' he commented. 'I knew it hit us pretty hard, but I didn't suppose it knocked us three miles from the track?'"—Argonaut.

The Page Between.

A New Orleans woman, well known for her work for charity, recently accepted an invitation to speak at an anti-tuberculosis meeting. On the platform she found herself seated between a bishop and a rabbi, and the tone of the meeting seemed to be rendered extremely solemn by the combination.

In order to lighten the solemnity, she said, turning to the rabbi, "Do you know, I feel as if I were a leaf between the Old and the New Testaments."

The rabbi turned a sad eyed gaze upon her.

"Yes, madam," he said, "and, if you will recall, that page is usually a blank one."

She Was a Bit Bashful.

Mr. Peet, a very diffident man, was unable to prevent himself being introduced one evening to a fascinating young lady, who, misunderstanding his name, constantly addressed him as Mr. Peters, much to the gentleman's distress. Finally summoning up the courage, he earnestly remonstrated: "Oh, don't call me Peters. Call me Peet!"

"Ah, but I don't know you well enough, Mr. Peters," said the young lady, blushing, as she withdrew behind her fan.—London Telegraph.

The Onion In Cooking.

The greatest of French cooks, being asked to give the secret of his success, answered: "The very foundation of all good cooking is butter and onion! I use them in all my sauces and gravies. They have the effect of making a customer come back for more. Butter without onion will drive the customer away after a few days. Boil the onion till it melts or entirely disappears; then add the butter and call the mixture stock."—Exchange.

Artificial Flies.

Dame Juliana Berners, prioress of the nunnery of Sapwell, near St. Albans, England, was the author of the first book on angling in the English language, printed in 1496. She gives a list of twelve flies, and now, after a lapse of more than four centuries, artificial flies, constructed after her formulas, would prove as successful as any of the up to date creations.

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—Work for Bellefonte. Always talk up your home town.

—Robins are reported, but perhaps they are only scouts sent out to investigate the conditions.

—B the John L. Nighthart has sprung something new on his patrons in the way of a electrical massage, —James Wian, the harness dealer has purchased the Hoffman property on Logan street for $800. It is his intention to remodel the same and occupy it as a residence.

—Mercantile appraiser Gingery, of Martha, has been somewhat delayed in getting over the county on account of having blood poison in his hand. It is somewhat better now and he has again taken up his work.

—The County auditors have completed the task of auditing the accounts of the various county officials. According to a recent act of assembly the report will be printed in two newspapers instead of the statement form as was heretofore the custom.

—While the Brockerhoff house porter was looking after some baggage Friday morning the horse which he left standing at the High street curb ran away. No damage was done, however, as the runaway horse was caught at the corner of High and Spring streets.

—A date has been secured for the Hi Henry's Minstrels on a Wednesday and it is probable that a matinee can be arranged for the ladies and children. It is thought that 3 o'clock would be an hour when all could make it suit but there is nothing definite about the hour as yet.

—It surely is good news not only to the people of Jersey Shore and Avis, but to their neighbors also, that nearly fifty of the recently suspended New York Central car repairers have been returned to work. Such facts as these assure one that gradually industrial conditions are improving.

—As yet nothing has materialized concerning base ball in Bellefonte for the coming season. All the other towns of any size in Central Pennsylvania have organized and many county and inter-county leagues have been formed. Bellefonte should be in one of the leagues and thus add interest to the sport.

—J. B. Gentzel, the well known horse dealer shipped a car load of Centre County horses Wednesday morning to W. C. Welter at West Chester, Pa. This is the third load of horses he has shipped out of Bellefonte in the past four weeks. He expects to ship another load inside of a week. This is not a bad record for Bellefonte.

—When the west bound valley passenger train pulled into the Bellefonte station Friday morning there were only five passengers in the smoking car. This is something very unusual as the trains coming into town are nearly always well filled. Persons who frequent the trains were heard to remark that they never noticed so few passengers before.

—A couple of nice warm days this week gave some of the boys base ball fever and as a result the Howard Street base ball team was organized. The team is composed of school boys of Howard Street. They are making arrangements to play the Linn street boys, the High school juniors and a Unionville team as soon as the season opens.

—Judging from the past year, there will be great difficulty in securing teachers for the public schools next September. Normal graduates are preferred to all others for the public schools. This should be a sufficient hint to young people who are thinking of being teachers to secure the best training for this great profession The Lock Haven Normal School affords such training. The spring term begins April 6th.

—Huntingdon's roller rink, the only place that the city had where theatrical shows could entertain the people, the scene of the X--High team's many basketball triumphs during the past winter, and the headquarters for other amusements, was completely gutted out and destroyed by fire between two and three o'clock on Tuesday morning. The management valued the rink at $10,000 and the insurance covers but about half of that amount.

—The arrangment by which the Academy is to secure the glass works meadow for an atheletic field was a good move on the part of that institution. But the project is not receiving the support from from our people that it should. Very little interest has been shown in the voting contest during the past week, and it is upon the contest that they depend for much of the fund to carry out the project. Every Bellefonter with any sporting blood in his veins should take an active interest in the erection of a first class atheletic field. With the Academy in town it is almost a necessity, at least if we want to keep up with the procession it must come.

—Spring like.

—Cheer up! Hi Henry is coming

—And once again the sidewalks are clear.

—Cheer up, there may be a few more spells of weather before the end of March.

—The Academy minstrels is welcome news to the Bellefonte lovers of home talent amusements.

—The Centre County Medical society held their regular monthly meeting in the Court house Tuesday.

—The appeal for a new trial for Wm. S. Donley has been abated on account of the death of the prisoner.

—The candidates for nomination at the April primaries are on the move and hustling over the county.

—Make your plans early to attend the Academy—St. Columbia basket ball game Friday night at the Armory.

—There is a noticeable increase in the number of traveling men on the road, an indication that business is picking up.

—Al. Stine of Pine street is moving his household goods to Yarnell. The family is yet in Bellefonte and expect to go to their new home in a few days.

—It is not known that there will be any extensive building operations in the spring but as usual there will be improvements and alternations on many properties.

—At a meeting of the Men's Municipal club in Renovo Thursday evening steps were taken for the celebration of Old Home week during the coming summer.

—After a very spirited contest Lewisburg was chosen as the place for the next conference of the United Evangelical church over the St. John's church Williamsport.

—On account of several cases of scarlet fever being reported in Salona the schools in that place were closed Friday. The rooms will be fumigated before the schools reopen.

—Frank Millward of East Bishop street has negotiated for the buther business of Kerstetter and Cole at Pleasant Gap and to moved his family and household goods to that place Wednesday.

—While the new way of disseminating the Auditor's report may be a saving to the County it means that there are many taxpayers who will not have any knowledge of the county's finances

—A corps of engineers are at work surveying along the line of the proposed new railroad on the opposite side of the river from Lock Haven. As the men in the party refuse to discuss their purpose it is not known in whose interests they are working.

—There is evident prosperity at Sunbury at the present time in the silk mill business. An addition is to be erected to the Susquehanna silk mills at that place that will give the works 20,000 square feet more room and will employ at least 150 additional hands.

—If there is any more winter weather snow, slush, and ice for us, it is to be hoped that it will be handed out to us during the present month and have done with it. When April comes there will be a lot of work on hands and we want winter to be over.

—A fall of rock occurred at the Bellefonte Furnace company's quarries Monday evening about eight o'clock. Quite a mass of rock fell at the one end and part of the back of the quarry. The fall however, did not interfere with the work at the quarry, and no one was injured.

—The town of Avis has made application to become a borough. The application contains the names of 102 freeholders, which includes women as well as men. Within the territory of the proposed new borough there are 165 voters and a population of 800

—C. H. Crissman, who a few years ago was an operator in the station of the B. E. V. railroad at Mill Hall, has by rapid advancement reached the position of assistant superintendent of the Buffalo, Rochester and Susquehanna railroad, with headquarters at DuBois.

—The Bellefonte basket ball team claim the championship of Central Pennsylvania in basket ball circles and the first team of the Y. M. C. A. question their superiority. A decision will be reached Friday evening, March 13, when the Bellefonte team will play here. The game promises to be interesting and a large attendance should be on hand to assist the locals in defeating the strong aggregation from Centre county.—Renova News.

—There is a mistaken idea current concerning the manner in which the American Express Company will conduct its business since the removal of the office to the Central railroad station. The report was that the company would not make any more deliveries or collections since the horse used by W. H. Miller was sent away. The latter has ask us to state that deliveries and collections of express matter will be made the same as heretofore. The office work is in charge of J. C. Rumbarger and Frank Steele and David Miller will do the delivering and collecting. You can communciate with the new office on either phone.

—Signs of spring are coming gradual but sure.

—The premature robin has put in his appearance.

—David Budd is moving his family from Tyrone to Snow Shoe.

—Didn't days like Tuesday make you wish you hadn't abused the weather man.

—Don't change your flannels till you hear the frogs in their bacchanalian songs.

—You can see what you buy, when you buy seeds in bulk of The Potter—Hoy Hdwe. Co.

—H. L. Hutchison is again able to be around after an illness of two weeks with grip.

—All seeds Northern grown, and guaranteed strictly new at The Potter—Hoy Hdwe. Co.,

—The thirty-ninth annual convention of the Centre County Sunday school association will be held at State College May 20th and 21st.

—William H. Brown of Bellefonte has announced himself this week as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Recorder of Centre County.

—The residence of Postmaster R. D. Peck, of Lock Haven was damaged by fire Tuesday evening. Prompt action of the fire companies saved the property from destruction.

—Near Wetham, Clinton county, Sunday a large deer which had evidently been chased by dogs plunged over the rocks landing on the railroad track thirty feet below. The animal's neck was broken.

—When you buy from your home merchant he is willing to show you his goods. When you buy from the mail order house you buy from pictures and you are liable to buy a "pig in the poke."

—The Margaret Henderson farm in Benner township was sold this week to Clayton Heckman son of Daniel Heckman of Bellefonte. The consideration was $7,000. Mr. Clayton Heckman who lives on the farm will continue to farm it.

—Among the Republican's enthusiastic and prompt paying subscribers is Mr. Vinton Beckwith of Hannah Furnace. Mr. Beckwith has been administering justice to the Taylor township residents for the past six years and has just been re-elected to fill the office of Justice of the Peace for the third term as testimony of his competency for that office.

—Norman Thompson, fireman at the Bellefonte steam laundry, was caught in one of the machines Friday forenoon and received injuries that will lay him off a few days. While in the act of throwing on a belt his left arm was caugh and badly sprained. He was taken to the Bellefonte hospital where his injuries were treated. He was fortunate in escaping without any broken bones.

—The efficiency of the small chemical fire extinguisher which one sees in so many places these days was demonstrated at Lock Haven early Tuesday morning when fire was discovered in the dental rooms of Brady and Baird. In less than a minute the flames which were making rapid headway were extinguished and no damage was done to the stores underneath, as is usually the case when plug streams are taken into a building.

—More graduates of the Lock Haven State Normal School are teaching in the valley of the west branch of the Susquehanna and in the central part of the state than from all other schools combined. It is in a highly prosperous condition. The great scarcity of teachers assures splendid positions to its graduates. An early application for rooms will be necessary for those who expect to enter for the spring term which begins April 6.

—We do not know whether it was through curiosity or sympathy that a large crowd gathered in front of the Daily News office Tuesday noon, but the sight, however, was a most pitiable one. A strong healthy looking man whose home is said to be in Waddles, had been visiting the saloons around town too frequently and lost control of his locomotive powers. While coming down High street toward the station he fell and alighting on his nose badly injured that member. After being exposed to public view for some time he was taken into custody by the authorities and cared for. The Bellefonte borough water is conceded to be the best and purest in the state and visitors should be careful as to what brand they select.

Knew Candidate's Father.

TO THE EDITORS OF THE REPUBLICAN:

Upon seeing the announcement of Wm. H. Evey's candidacy for the Legislature, reminds me of the fact that I was present when his father Lieut. Henry Evey, was killed by a shell at the battle of the Wilderness. He had served in the Mexican War, and at the first call for Volunteers in the late Rebellion he enlisted in the Three Months Service, and then re-enlisting continued in the service until he was killed, a true patriot. William, the candidate was then about six years old, and soon after was sent to the Soldiers Orphan School at McAllisterville, where he was educated, and by the way he is the only boy that was educated at a Soldiers Orphan School who has ever been a candidate for office in Centre county.

His platform is to have the State pay the operating expenses of the common schools, and take that tax off the homes and farms of the people. This would save over $109,000 a year to the taxpayers of Centre County.

Death at Blanchard.

Wesley Heverly, a well known citizen of Blanchard, died at his home Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, aged 68 years, 4 months and 14 days. For some time he suffered from a carbuncle which had formed at the base of the brain. Later, pneumonia developed and caused his death.

Mr. Heverly followed lumbering when it was at its best in this state, and for several years he and his wife conducted a boarding house at Monument. He was an active and energetic worker and officer in the Baptist church.

Deceased is survived by 4 sons: Alexander, George and Edward, all of Blanchard and Harry of Beech Creek township, also by one daughter Minnie wife of Charles Sorgnum of DuBois.

The funeral was conducted in the Baptist church at Blanchard Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock by Rev. Ware. Interment in the cemetery adjoining the church

Joseph Houser.

Joseph Houser of near Coleville, who was operated on at the University of Pennsylvania hospital at Philadelphia, a short time ago for a cancerous growth died in that institution Wednesday morning about one o'clock. After the operation was performed Mr. Houser appeared to be improving rapidly, but Monday he was taken suddenly worse and death resulted at the time stated. He was aged about 61 years and is survived by a wife and several grown up children. The remains were brought to the late home Thursday evening. The funeral services were held at the house Saturday afternoon at two o'clock and interment was made in the Meyers cemetery.

An Acknowledgement.

At a meeting of Branch No. 722 National Association of Letter Carriers located at Bellefonte, on the 29th day of February 1908, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

RESOLVED,—that in view of the kindly interest shown toward the Letter Carriers of the United States by the Honorable Boise Penrose as President of the Senate Committee on Post offices and Post roads, at the last session of Congress, we extend him our heart felt thanks for his friendly attitude in our behalf, and that we deeply appreciate his work for the enchancement of our cause.

E. E. ARDERY, Secretary. E. C. WOODS, President.

Married—Mr. Wm. M. Durkee and Miss Mary E. Houser, both of Pleasant Gap, were married at the Methodist parsonage in Bellefonte Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by Rev. J. B. Stein. The groom is a son of Rev. Durkee of the Methodist church and the bride is one of the Gap's most estimable young ladies. They will take up their residence at Pleasant Gap.

Death of Miss Margery Lieb.

Again has the death angel entered a Bellefonte home and taken from among the living one her daughters. Miss Margery G. Lieb is the one whose demise we are pained to chronicle. Miss Lieb had been afflicted with tuberculosis for the past year or more and was a patient sufferer of that dreaded disease up to the hour of her death which occurred Tuesday morning a few minutes before 1 o'clock.

The deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Lieb, of Bush's Addition, and was born in Bellefonte on April 20, 1879, and would have been 29 years of age had she lived till her next birthday. She was a member of the Bellefonte Methodist church and was active in church work and in the affiliated societies when her health permitted. Her friendship extended to a large circle of young people of Bellefonte who are grieved to hear of the death of one so young in life.

Besides her sorrowing parents two sisters mourn her death. They are Mrs. Samuel S. Taylor of New York City, and Mrs. Miles E. Osmer, of Oberlin, O.

The funeral services were held this (Thursday) morning at 10 o'clock from her late home. Rev. James B. Stein officiating and interment was made in the Union cemetery.

Wreck on the L. & T.

The local freight which runs between Bellefonte and the White Rock quarries wrecked on the return trip Thursday morning a short distant beyond the Nittany furnace. It is customary to take out empty cars and bring back the loaded ones. The train Thursday morning consisted of six large steel cars and as they rounded the curve a short distance from the yard limit a broken wheel on the fourth car caused the rails to spread The derailed car ran for some distance before leaving the road bed. This car with the two following it were turned completely over and landed on the bank of the creek clear of the tracks. Twenty-six rails were displaced by the broken rail, and the section crews at once began to replace these with heavier ones. The Lewisburg train was tied up for considerable time. Many of the passengers walked into town and some were brought in by conveyances from the liveries None of the men who are employed on the train were injured.

Shadle Was Acquitted.

The "unwritten law" figured largely in the trial of Ellery Shadle at Williamsport last week Shadle was charged with shooting Paul Lepari, who, it is alleged, was paying attention to the former's wife. The shooting occurred on the evening of Nov. 25, when Shadle, who was employed at Lock Haven, arrived at his home on Second street, Williamsport, unexpectedly and found Rose Lepari, an Italian, in the house with his wife. Trouble followed and Lepari was badly used up, one of his injuries being in the nature of a bullet wound in his left breast The wound did not prove fatal.

Lepari was the principal witness for the prosecution and claimed that he had been going to the Shadle home for his meals Witnesses testified that they had seen Lepari go to the home frequently.

When the verdict of not guilty was brought in by the jury it was received with applause.

Don't Want Dr. Kalbfus.

At the meeting of the Milton Rod and Gun club held last week, with but one dissenting vote, it was decided not to accept Dr. Kalbfus' proposition to come here and address the club on game and game law revision. The Milton club has over a hundred members and ranks with the first of the state's sporting organizations. The actions of the club is based on the doctor's avowed antipathy to the dog.

A George Cohan Song.

Everybody knows George Cohan He's the man that made "Little Johnny Jones" famous. Little Johnny Jones with his rousing songs. Well, he has others that are better. Next Sunday's New York World will contain the words and music of a popular George Cohan song from his new play "Fifty Miles From Boston." Simply great. Everybody will want it.
